GERMANS CAPTURE MORE PRISONERS IN PURSUING ITALIANS

Berlin Reports Some Thousands Have Been Brought as Cadorna's Men Retire Between Mountains and the Adriatic.

Rome Declares Italians Are Falling Back in Good Order—Expected to Stand on Piave.

Gen. Cadorna Creates a Great War Zone, Taking in Territory 30 Miles to the South of Venice.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 7.—The Germans are continuing their pursuit of the Italians and have taken more prisoners, the War Office announces.

"In the mountains and on the Venetian plain the pursuit is being continued," says the statement. "Some thousands of prisoners have been brought in."

ROME, Nov. 7.—The Italians have withdrawn in good order from the Tagliamento River, toward the Livenza, it is announced officially.

"As the lower waters of the Tagliamento rendered difficult defense of the river, we have withdrawn our line toward the Livenza. The retreat was accomplished in good order, under the protection of northward covering units and of rear guards toward the south."

"Yesterday and last night our airplanes and airships repeatedly bombed enemy troops at work in repairing bridges over the Tagliamento, or in movement across the river. Four hostile machines were brought down by our aviators."

The Livenza is the next river line behind the Tagliamento. Its mouth is 12 miles below that of the Tagliamento. Its course is tortuous and it has been generally assumed that Gen. Cadorna would undertake nothing more than a delaying action there, making his stand along a more favorable line, such as that of the Piave River.

Says New Italian Line Will Run Along the Piave.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The new Italian line of defense will run along the course of the Piave River, says the Rome correspondent of the Matin. He describes this line as one which an army that has pulled itself together and is determined to resist can hold for a long time. "It is hoped that," the dispatch continues, "if an energetic counter-offensive becomes necessary at one of the most threatened points, Franco-British forces will participate. In this way a retreat to the Adige line may be avoided. The Tagliamento was fortified hastily and could not be held."

CADORNA CREATES WAR ZONE RUNNING SOUTH OF VENICE

Order Includes All Territory North and East of Po and Mincio Rivers.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Tuesday, Nov. 6.—Gen. Cadorna has issued an order including in the zone of military operations all territory to the north and east of the Po and Mincio Rivers.

"This district takes in all of Northeastern Italy from a point on the Adriatic coast about 30 miles south of Venice, westward and northward of Lake Garda on the Trentino front."

The main part of the situation connected with the reorganization of the second and third armies is that Gen. Cadorna's line has been re-established. This line will be defended by the same magnificent troops which in May won four battles, at the same time storming Monte Santo, Monte Kuk, Sabotino and Hermada. The soldiers have the greatest confidence in Gen. Cadorna.

One element of the new Cadorna line is that the soldiers already are learning to withstand the German methods of fighting which are different from those of the Austrians. It was necessary for the troops who in Libya four years ago conquered the Turks by bayonet charges, the Italians being without artillery of any kind, even machine guns, to learn how to conquer the Austrians. Now they must learn the German way. The Italians have vast superiority in mountain fighting over the Germans, who secured their advantage two weeks ago by treachery.

More Airplanes Wanted. Gen. Cadorna's line is being strengthened by the inspiring activity of airplanes, notably the Capronis, in constructing charges, the Italians making rapid strides. Italian officers have insisted to the correspondent that the

U. S. PATROL BOAT SUNK IN WAR ZONE; 21 OF CREW MISSING

Alcedo, a Converted Yacht, Goes Down in Four Minutes, but 71 Men Are Rescued—Little Hope for Others.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The Navy Department is awaiting from Vice Admiral Sims a complete report of the torpedoing of the American patrol vessel Alcedo, which went down in the war zone early Monday morning, with a probable loss of one officer and 20 men. The Alcedo, a converted yacht, apparently was hit at a vital spot, as only four minutes elapsed before she plunged below.

The department early today gave out a list of those unaccounted for and announced that vessels were searching for possible survivors. Of the Alcedo's full complement of seven officers and 85 men, 71 are known to have been rescued, but little hope is held out for the possible safety of those reported missing.

Report on Sinking. The Navy Department announced the disaster in this statement:

"The Navy Department has been advised by Vice Admiral Sims that at 1:30 a. m., Nov. 5, the American patrol boat Alcedo, a converted yacht, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the war zone. One officer and 20 men are missing. The ship sank in four minutes after being struck. Several vessels were searching for possible survivors at the time the report was made. The Alcedo carried a crew of seven officers and 85 men."

The Alcedo is the first American war vessel to go down in the war. The destroyer Cassin, on patrol duty, was torpedoed recently, but she made port safely with the loss of only one man.

List of Missing.

The Navy Department announced the following members of the Alcedo's crew were still unaccounted for:

Lieut. (junior grade) John T. Melvin, father, Bishop Stewart Melvin of Selma, Ala.

E. R. Gozzett, seaman; mother, Mrs. A. G. Gozzett, Astoria, Long Island.

James J. Cleary, seaman; mother, Mrs. Albertina Cleary, White Plains, N. Y.

Artillery fighting continued fairly active on the American sector today.

SUFFRAGISTS WIN NEW YORK; PLAN FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Victory Causes Women to Prepare for Campaign for National Enfranchisement.

GET UNLIMITED VOTE

Majority in New York Expected to Reach 100,000—Celebration Tonight.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Suffragists, who won a notable victory yesterday when unlimited suffrage was granted to women in New York State by a majority which is expected to reach 100,000, are preparing to conduct a vigorous campaign for the adoption of the national suffrage constitutional amendment.

Nearly 2,000,000 women will be enfranchised by the election in New York State.

With only 896 out of 5772 election districts missing, the vote stood: For suffrage, 601,537; against, 504,492. The vote in New York City complete was: Yes, 334,011; no, 241,315.

As the big vote began to pile up the scenes at the city and state suffrage headquarters approached hysteria. Women showered embraces, kisses and congratulations upon each other.

On the sweeping character of yesterday's victory in this State, the leaders predicted that Congress would be influenced to act favorably upon the constitutional suffrage amendment. It was announced that a celebration of the victory would be held tonight at Cooper Union.

Fourteenth Suffrage State.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, chairman of the Women's Council of National Defense, and an ardent suffrage worker, said:

"The New York election will have a decided influence upon the British House of Lords in granting the extension of woman suffrage to the women of Great Britain. It will also have an influence with the national Legislatures of France."

Dr. Shaw today added a huge diamond to 13 others set in her Susan B. Anthony pin to represent the fourteenth suffrage state.

Mrs. James Wadsworth Jr., president of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, said:

"If we are beaten in New York City we go down with good government and consider ourselves in good company."

The apparent victory of the women was the culmination of an earnest and persistent campaign that had been waged for many years. Defeated in 1915 by a plurality of 195,000, they immediately laid their plans for a renewal of the battle.

Their program was designed to show feminine fitness for franchise and marked by an absence of spectacular demonstrations. They engaged in war relief work, assisted in the State military census, canvassed for funds for the Red Cross and solicited subscriptions for Liberty bonds.

One accomplishment was a petition signed by more than a million women of the State, asking for the right to vote, and was intended as a refutation of the claims of the anti-suffrage workers that only a few New York women wanted the ballot.

State Well Organized.

Organization and education featured their campaign. Each of 5772 election districts had its workers and district offices were established in some of the larger cities. Suffrage literature was circulated in carload lots and every voter was reached in some way by the propaganda. Suffrage orators, both men and women, presented their case with public meetings, factory gatherings, settlement houses and on the street corners.

President Wilson and Gov. Whitman endorsed the movement. The President recently sent to the suffragists his best wishes for success in New York State, as did a group of Cabinet officers. Virtually all the higher officers of the nation and the State have made similar announcements.

The actions of the militant band that posted pickets at the White House gates were offset by the vigorous assertions of the leaders of the New York State Woman Suffrage party that their organization condemned such conduct and a further favorable reaction followed President Wilson's declaration that votes for women ought not to be withheld on account of the demonstrations of a very small minority.

Presidential Woman Suffrage Defeated in Ohio.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 7.—Presidential woman's suffrage was defeated in yesterday's election in Ohio. With 2002 precincts missing the vote is 258,947 for and 374,459 against suffrage.

Investigation Into Explosion.

DYER FAILS TO KEEP WIEGAND OUT OF ARMY

Second Time Appeals Board Has Overruled Protest by Congressman.

DYER CRITICISES ACTION

Exemption for One of 3 Men for Whom He Appealed Not Influenced by Him.

For the second time, the St. Louis District Appeal Board today overruled a protest against its decision in a draft case, made by Congressman L. C. Dyer of the Twelfth District, and determined that the man in question must serve in the national army. The man, in this case, was George G. Wiegand of 5582 Berlin avenue, secretary of the Standard Stamping Co., of which his father, George Wiegand of 35 Washington terrace, is president.

Former Judge Selden P. Spencer, chairman of the district board, said, in announcing the decision in the Wiegand case, that Congressman Dyer might as well not have written the letters which he wrote in this and two other cases, as his arguments had had no effect on the board.

One Exemption Granted.

The board granted exemption to one of the three men for whom Dyer appealed, but Judge Spencer said that Dyer's letter had nothing to do with the board's decision in the case, which was that of George H. Armbruster of 3539 Delor street. The same action would have been taken without Dyer's interposition, he said.

In another case, that of Harold P. Lembach of 1448 North Grand avenue, Dyer made an appeal to President Wilson. The President sent Dyer's letter to the Provost Marshal-General, who sent it to the Adjutant-General at Jefferson City, who sent it to the St. Louis District board, which maintained its original ruling.

"If Mr. Dyer had been more familiar with the law," Judge Spencer said, "he would have known that the President had no power to act in the Lembach case. No other authority had any power to reverse the district board's action in that case."

"Mr. Dyer may have thought that, as one of those who helped to make the draft law, he could aid this board in construing it. But he might as well not have written any of the letters he wrote."

Comment by Member.

Fred L. English, another member of the board, commenting on the same matter, said: "Anyone has the right to make suggestions. No one has the right to command this board, not even a member of Congress."

The board is acting in some cases, specifically the Wiegand case, he said, "under a misconception of the law, a misapprehension of its duty and prejudice because of the wealth of the family. It was not the law intent that the ability of the man to support his family was a man's parents to care for the man's wife should be considered. I think I know a little something about the law, as I was present when it was passed."

In his letter to Chairman Spencer regarding the Wiegand case, written Saturday, Congressman Dyer mentioned recent instructions sent out from the Provost Marshal-General's office, which he quoted as follows:

"If the family at the time of summons and prior thereto were, and been, mainly dependent upon his labor for support, he should be discharged, regardless of whether his parents or those of his wife are financially able to support those dependents."

Applying this to the Wiegand case, Congressman Dyer wrote: "Mr. Wiegand is married, and his wife is shortly to become a mother. Certainly this state of affairs brings him within the ruling of the Provost Marshal-General, and I feel quite certain that had your board been aware of this ruling at the time you considered the case he would have been exempted."

Judge Spencer's Reply.

In his reply, Judge Spencer said: "I brought your letter, together with your reference to the law which you were good enough to make, before the board, and the case was again considered, with the result that the board does not see any reason to change its former opinion, which was that Mr. Wiegand should be held for military service. Believe me, with great respect, very truly yours."

The board's denying exemption to Wiegand was that he was married April 11, five days after war was declared. Wiegand's father filed an affidavit with the board to the effect that he was not in a position to support young Mrs. Wiegand and would not be willing to undertake such support, and the wife's mother, Mrs. Henry Miller, whose husband is in Russia, a member of the American Railroad Commission, made a similar affidavit.

In the Lembach case, which he

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 7.—The first Americans to die in actual combat with the enemy (Privates James B. Gresham of Evansville, Ind., Thomas F. Enright of Pittsburg and Merle D. Hay of Glidden, Mo.) were buried near the trenches where they fell today.

The graves were in a trench, the French General commanding the sector made a touching address, giving honor to the young volunteers who died fighting for freedom and now rest in the soil of France. This address was punctuated each minute by the boom of French and American cannon firing minute guns upon the German lines. Then an American Chaplain read the solemn burial service, the guns still booming.

At the last an American flag, presented by the French, was laid on each of the soldiers' graves, in a touching demonstration of French sympathy.

A further investigation of the German raid shows that the devoted little band of Americans were subjected to a bombardment of 50 minutes by 16 German batteries, which is almost exactly half the total strength of the American field artillery in June, 1916, and an average of 10 guns to each single American soldier in the 40-day sector of the trenches raided.

The French General's report on the raid says the conduct of the Americans was "highly honorable."

The three men were killed in the

Tammany Hall Regains Political Strength of 1901

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The vote polled by Judge Hylan was Tammany's largest percentage of the total vote in the city's mayoralty elections since 1902. Out of a total of 642,445 ballots, the Tammany Hall candidate received 297,282 or 46 per cent.

In 1903 the party nominee received 314,732 out of 589,898, or 53 per cent.

Not until almost midnight did the figures show that anti-prohibition was leading, and only then by a few hundred. From then, however, the anti-prohibitionists made steady gains.

WETS LEADING IN OHIO; DRYS WIN IN NEW MEXICO

Ohio Vote on Prohibition Is Close, Incomplete Returns Giving Drys 474,581 Against 478,334, With Wet Strongholds In.

Woman Suffrage Carries in New York State by Nearly 100,000; Presidential Suffrage Loses in Ohio.

Tammany Candidate Wins New York Mayoralty Election by Record Plurality—Socialists Gain 100,000.

Prohibition apparently was defeated in Ohio in yesterday's election, although late returns may change the result. New Mexico was added to the list of prohibition states, which now number 24.

Woman suffrage won a sweeping victory in New York state, where unlimited suffrage was granted by a majority which may reach 100,000. Presidential suffrage was defeated in Ohio.

Tammany Hall returned to power in Greater New York, where Judge John F. Hylan, who began his career as a track layer, was elected by the largest plurality ever given to a mayoralty candidate and carried all city offices with him.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 7.—Prohibition apparently was defeated in yesterday's election in Ohio, although late returns may possibly change the result.

With only 429 precincts to be heard from the anti-prohibition forces maintained a lead of 3753 this afternoon on detailed figures reported from all the counties in Ohio except Harrison County.

Harrison County sent an estimate that the county would go dry by 2500 votes, but this estimate was not included in the precinct figures, which gave from 5327 precincts out of 5756: For prohibition, 474,581; against prohibition, 478,334.

The two wet strongholds, Hamilton County and Cleveland, have reported complete returns.

Not until almost midnight did the figures show that anti-prohibition was leading, and only then by a few hundred. From then, however, the anti-prohibitionists made steady gains.

TAMMANY HALL'S CANDIDATE EASILY WINS IN NEW YORK

Hylan's Plurality Is 148,178 With Mitchell Second and Hillquit Polling 142,178.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Tammany Hall returned to power as the result of yesterday's mayoralty election. Not only was Judge John F. Hylan, a former track layer, on an elevated railroad, swept into office by the largest plurality ever given to a mayoralty candidate in New York City, but there was elected with him the entire Democratic ticket, giving the new administration all of the 16 votes in the Board of Estimate which controls city expenditures.

Those elected with Judge Hylan are Charles L. Craig, Controller; Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, and the presidents of the five boroughs of the city.

Judge Hylan's plurality, based on virtually complete returns early today, was 147,975. Mayor Mitchell's plurality four years ago was 121,289.

The vote for Mayor stood: John F. Hylan (Democrat), 297,282; John Purroy Mitchell (fusion), 149,307.

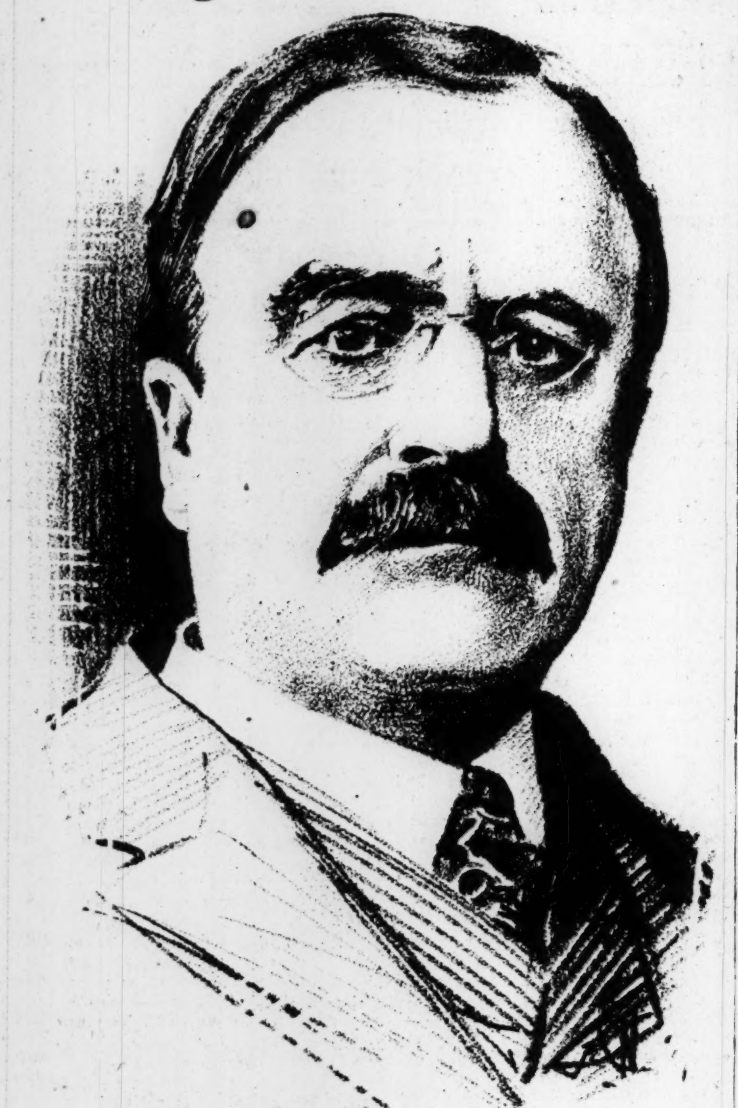

Morris Hillquit (Socialist), 142,178.

William M. Bennett (Republican), 52,678.

One outstanding feature of the mayoralty vote was the great increase in the Socialist vote. In 1913 Charles Edward Russell, the Socialist candidate, polled only 32,100 votes. At the presidential election last year Allan L. Benson, Socialist

ACTIVITY NEAR VERDUN

German Attack at Chaume Wood Is Broken Up by French Fire.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Germans made no effort during the night to regain the ground captured yesterday on the Ypres front by the British.

"On the battle front there is nothing to report except intermittent German artillery operations," says today's official statement. "Our troops have been engaged in consolidating the positions won in yesterday's attack."

A successful raid was carried out last night by Liverpool troops north-west of Quent. We captured a few prisoners.

Last night's report on the victory of yesterday said: "Operations were undertaken this morning by the Canadian troops with complete success against the enemy's defenses in and around Passchendaele and on the spur north-west of the village," says the text of the statement.

"The assembly of our troops for the attack was carried out successfully. At 8 a. m. the assault was launched as arranged."

The enemy had been ordered to hold this important position on the main ridge at all costs. Hard fighting took place at a number of points, particularly on the high ground north of the village and for a long time the fighting was very hard.

They say Italy has a superabundance of troops, but never has had enough airplanes which they believe will prove the key to further warfare. They assert that the United States, therefore, will do far better for her allies by furnishing airplanes than in sending troops, a task which it will require great effort to carry out, and also large quantities of food to maintain the men.

The Italian point of view seemed vindicated not only when the Italian forces took Balaia in September, but during the recent retreat when the Capronis protected the rear and also destroyed by bombardment storehouses of supplies which the retreating infantry was unable to take.

It is true that the Italian army has been tampered with and that the Isanzo retreat is more of a political than military defeat. But it is reiterated that the army's heart is sound. The army is made up of young men taught in the school of hardship for the country. It has grown from very small dimensions to a splendid organization.

Owing to Italian conservatism, national poverty and other causes of the eastern part of the country, a nationwide campaign in Italy for an adequate increase in the artillery.

It is hoped by all Italians that the United States will not lose confidence in the bravery of the Italian troops. The efficiency of the officers and the patriotism of the people have played into the hands of the enemy.

The situation is getting clearer and the darkness which the troops are falling back to the new positions gives a promising outlook. The general condition, however, continues grave, though for the first time there is a note of encouragement and confidence in the course of events.

BRIGADE OF ITALIAN GRENADEIERS FIGHTS UNTIL LAST FALLS

Austro-German Advance Delayed by Small Band of Men Who Make Gallant Stand.

By Associated Press.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Tuesday, Nov. 6.—Again a brigade of grenadiers has covered itself with glory, standing like a rock in the face of the advancing Austro-German tide until it was overwhelmed. After the enemy had crossed the Tagliamento and was pressing on between Pordenone and Portogruaro, the grenadiers were assigned to hold up the advance in this region. No shelling from the enemy could dislodge them. They lay prone behind brushwood, calmly awaiting the foe.

As soon as the enemy came within range his snipers were swept with the rifle fire of the grenadiers. The Austro-German lines were filled up immediately, however, and continued to advance in overwhelming waves. As they approached the grenadiers rose to their knees and hurled the grenades, but were unable to turn back such great numbers of the enemy.

The last surviving officer then ordered a bayonet charge. Without hesitation the grenadiers dashed at the foe. Then, when the few survivors, using their rifles as clubs, were fighting on until one by one fell. That did not occur, however, until they had accomplished their task, for their resistance delayed the enemy until the Italian troops reached a place of safety and were reformed for action.

Five Teuton Armies Said to Be Operating Against Italy.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—It is announced at the Austro-Hungarian army headquarters, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co., that the Teuton armies operating against Italy number five, with the leader, commanded by Von Buelow, who commands the center army.

An army in this sense is believed to contain three corps of 40,000 men each.

KERENSKY CHARGES SOLDIERS' COUNCIL IS AIDING REVOLT

Accuses Military Committee of Distributing Arms Among Workmen.

TROOPS GUARD CAPITAL

Bridges Disconnected Between Working Class Districts and Center of Petrograd.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.—The Government has decided not to resort to armed force at present against the military committee of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates, but has ordered the Ministry of Justice to prosecute its members. The military will act in case of a revolt.

The Revolutionary Military Committee of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates demanded the right to control all orders of the general staff in the Petrograd district, which was refused. Thereupon the committee announced it had appointed special commissioners to undertake the direction of the military and invited the troops to observe only orders signed by the committee. Machine gun detachments moved to the soldiers' and workmen's headquarters.

The Government hopes for a peaceful settlement of the dispute, on which account it reached the decision not to resort to force for the present. However, the soldiers' and workmen's committee was decreed an illegal organization and precautionary steps were taken to defeat any attempt to revolt.

In addressing the Preliminary Parliament yesterday Premier Kerensky charged the military committee of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates with having distributed arms and ammunition to workmen.

"That is why I consider part of the population of Petrograd in a state of revolt," he said, "and I demand an immediate inquiry and such arrests as are necessary. The Government will perish rather than cease to defend the honor, security and independence of the State."

Negotiations between the General Staff in the Petrograd district and the military committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, looking toward the strengthening of the staff by the inclusion of Democratic members, have been broken off. The military committee, learning that the military government during the night had summoned troops in the environs of the capital to Petrograd, ordered these troops to disobey the Government. The entire city is now guarded by loyal troops.

The situation is complicated further by the action of Premier Kerensky in suspending three Maximalist and two Conservative newspapers. The city authorities ordered a disconnection of the bridges between the quarters of the city inhabited by the working classes and the center of the city, thus stopping the tramway.

At the session of the preliminary Parliament Premier Kerensky, referring to the Maximalist attempt to seize power and provoke civil war, said amid applause from the right and center and part of the left:

"The people who have put their hands against the will of the Russian people are at the same time threatening to open the front to Germany."

The newspapers say the Government requested Gen. Verkhovsky to leave Petrograd and that he departed this evening for the island of Valaam in Lake Ladoga, northeast of Petrograd.

GOVERNMENT TO FIX SIZE AND PRICE OF A LOAF OF BREAD

Bakers to Be Licensed as Manufacturers. Reduction in Price at Many Points Expected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Direct action to control the price of bread and fix the size of a standard loaf will be taken soon by President Wilson in a proclamation placing all bakers under the license system administered by Food Administrator Hoover.

The bakers will be considered as manufacturers, and the terms of the proclamation will make it possible for the food administration to control price and size of the loaf. Considerable reduction of prices in many localities is expected to be the immediate result.

KAISER CANCELS BORIZIA TRIP

Doctors Advise Emperor Not to Overtax His Strength.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from The Hague says a message received there from Cologne asserts that Emperor William canceled his visit to Borizia.

"The doctors have ordered the Emperor not to overtax his strength," the dispatch adds. "Although not so ill, the Emperor needs rest and less traveling. The last six months have been particularly strenuous for him."

District Board Makes Second Reversal on Exemption Ruling.

John Borycwicz of 1432 North Nineteenth street yesterday was denied exemption by the District Appeals Board, which reversed the decision of the local board for the second time.

He was originally exempted by the Fourth Ward board because of a dependent wife. The district board reversed the decision of the ward board on a Government appeal that he was married on July 29 or 30. Borycwicz then went to Camp Funston as part of the ward quota.

His wife then induced the ward board to ask the Adjutant-General for permission to reopen the case, and this was granted. The ward board exempted him again. The Government appealed a second time and the district board reversed the ward board for a second time because his wife is working and they were married after the draft law was passed.

President Wilson has sustained the district board's denying an exemption claim filed by F. W. E. Schaefer of Glencoe, St. Louis County, on agricultural grounds. Schaefer has several brothers at home.

Release of Four Approved.

The release of four St. Louisans from the national army at Camp Funston has been approved by the District Board. Wives and other dependents of the men told ward boards that they were unable to provide for themselves. The men are Samuel N. Hurst of 3125 Maury avenue, married; Felix Barth, a chauffeur at 40 Westmoreland place, Thurman G. Holden, 2847 A Montgomery street, and Robert Kaplan of 1709 Bacon street. Evidence in the cases will be sent to Secretary of War Baker, who only can order their discharge.

following manner: One's throat was cut with a German trench knife, another was struck by a bomb and the third was shot the instant he left the dugout.

It is evident that the Germans crawled within 40 yards of the American trench, lying ready to leap the instant the barrage was lifted.

The raiders were actually cut off in No Man's Land on their way back to their own line by the American barrage. They must have had heavy losses.

JAILED SUFFRAGE PICKETS IN WASHINGTON REFUSE TO EAT

National Chairman of Woman's Party and a Member Go on a Hunger Strike.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The hunger strike of the militants of the Woman's Party in the local jail today to the ranks. Miss Rose Winslow of New York also was in the jail hospital with Alice Paul, national chairman of the party, and both were refusing to eat unless the five other militants, also doing time for picketing the White House, got a better diet than the salt pork and cabbage on which they say they have been fed almost exclusively for 14 days. The hunger strike now is 48 hours old.

Headquarters of the Woman's Party declared today White House picketing by silent sentinels would not be suspended and that pickets were coming in now from many states to resume the offensive Nov. 10.

Miss Paul, a slight little woman, weighing about 90 pounds and of delicate constitution, was taken to the jail hospital Monday night because she was ill. Miss Paul said she was ill because of bad food, bad air and no exercise. When Miss Paul was taken to the hospital she was offered a diet including milk, eggs and without the salt pork and cabbage, but she announced she would have none of it unless her sisters got the same.

Men Promise to Double His $1493, But Take It, Instead

Marco Podgorsky met a man in Detroit the other day who said he was looking up persons who saved their earnings. He has an uncle in California, he said, who liked to encourage thrift and who was willing to give such persons the same amount that he had saved. Podgorsky said he had saved $1493 and would be very glad to have the man's uncle double it.

They were joined by another man and Podgorsky was told that he would have to show them his earnings. He told them to come to St. Louis and he would show them. They came here yesterday and Podgorsky showed his money from a bank and showed it to them. They sent him to inquire about a ticket to Spain and when he returned they had disappeared.

His money was gone from his wallet.

LAWYER LECTURED ON LEGAL ETHICS AT RIOT INQUIRY

Daniel McGlynn of "Committee of 100," Attorney for Three of Policemen Accused.

HAD URGED PROSECUTION

Denies Congressman Cooper's Imputation That He Appears
"on Both Sides of Case."

Daniel McGlynn, a prominent East St. Louis attorney, received a lecture on legal ethics today when he appeared as a voluntary witness before the Congressional Committee which is investigating the East St. Louis race riots.

The committee several days ago criticized McGlynn when it learned that, after urging the prosecuting authorities vigorously to punish all who took part in the riots, he had undertaken, as attorney, to defend three policemen accused of murdering negroes in the riots.

McGlynn told the committee he was a member of the executive committee of the Citizens' Committee of One Hundred, which urged prosecution of rioters.

He undertook the defense of Sgt. Con Meahan and Policemen James O'Brien and Albert Wilson, he said, because the act they were accused of was "separated from the general riot," having occurred July 3, and because personal reasons put him under obligation to defend these three men. He denied he had used improper methods to learn what evidence the State had collected against these clients.

After hearing McGlynn's explanation, Congressman Cooper said: "There is in this country, although somewhat attenuated, a thing known as the ethics of the law profession. This code provides that a lawyer shall not appear on both sides of a case."

"I do not consider that I did that," replied McGlynn.

CIVIL WAR CRONIES IN SCRAP, ONE'S SKULL IS FRACTURED

Henry Neu Horrified When He Learns Result of Cane Blow in First Quarrel.

Henry Neu, 72 years old, and James Barron, 69, both of 202 South Seventh street, cronies and Civil War veterans, quarreled last night, and struck at each other with their canes. Neu's cane struck Barron on the head, and Neu was horrified when he learned later, from city hospital physicians, that he had fractured his old friend's skull.

"We're a couple of old fools," Neu said penitently to the policeman who arrested him. "It was the first scrap we had."

He said Barron, in giving him a chew of tobacco, had asked him to take only a small chew, as he was "hooverizing" his supply. This started a discussion as to how long the war would last, and words led to cane strokes.

HERBERT E. TUTTLE DIES

Herbert E. Tuttle, 49 years old, second son of Bishop Daniel E. Tuttle of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Missouri, died last night in St. Luke's Hospital, following an operation for an abscess.

He was engaged in mining promotion and had lived in various places in the West. His home recently having been in Canby, Kan. He started last month for Mexico, and was delayed at the border while awaiting a passport. Becoming ill, he went to a hospital in San Antonio, Tex., and he was brought from San Antonio to St. Louis last Friday by his father and his brother, Dr. George M. Tuttle. An operation was performed, from which he did not survive. A widow and one child survive him.

ELEVATOR ACCIDENT FATAL

Albert Ellis, 20 years old, of 917 Hickory street, a packer, died last night at the city hospital from injuries received a few hours before in an elevator accident at the Steinwender-Stoffregen Coffee Co., 331 South Broadway.

He was crushed between the elevator and the floor and held there until frenzied men from Truck Co. 25 chopped away part of the floor. Ellis slipped while trying to board the moving elevator.

COMMISSION WINS IN EAST ST. LOUIS BY WOMEN'S AID

Vote Almost 2 to 1 for Proposition to Displace Present Form of City Government.

EFFECTIVE IN APRIL 1919

Carried in All Wards Except the First, Heavily Populated With Labor Element.

Women of East St. Louis, who cast approximately 50 per cent of the total vote in yesterday's special election, almost solidly supported the commission form of government and fought about the adoption of the proposition by almost two to one. The vote was 4754 in favor of the commission form and 2454 against, a majority for it of 2300.

Only one ward gave a majority against the commission form. This was the First, which includes the district adjacent to the stockyards and inhabited almost entirely by laborers, many of whom are of foreign nativity. Nine scattering precincts in other wards gave majorities against the proposition. These also are centers of the working men's vote.

Negroes Favor the Plan.
The negroes, whose vote was claimed by the opponents of the measure, voted overwhelmingly for it. In the three precincts of the Second Ward having the greatest preponderance of negro votes of any precincts in the city, the vote was as follows: Fourth Precinct, 74 for, 15 against; Sixth Precinct, 74 for, 9 against; Seventh Precinct, 72 for, 12 against.

Mayor Mollman, who opposed the commission form, this morning issued a statement in which he said he recognized there were many commendable features of the plan and that during the remainder of his term he would conduct his office as nearly in accordance with the principles of commission government as is possible, under the existing laws.

He said the time when his term will expire and the commission form become effective is too far distant for him to say whether he will be a candidate for mayor under the new plan. He was gratified, he said, that the campaign committee, which conducted the fight for the commission form, did not sling mud or attack his administration.

He said the five commissioners under the new form will be able to understand each other better and work in closer harmony than the 18 Aldermen under the present form. The biggest question confronting the commissioners, he said, when they take office will be that of revenue. He pointed out that many saloons have closed and that he expects at least 100 more to go out of business by Jan. 1, decreasing municipal revenue $75,000 a year.

The success of the proposal means that there will be a thorough reorganization of municipal functions, including the abolition of the old ward system. The chief advantages of the new form are: The direct fixing of responsibility, the referendum on public service franchises, the publication of receipts and expenditures, and the referendum and recall for officials.

Change Effective in April, 1919.
No change can be made until April, 1919, as that is when Mayor Mollman's term expires. When the term of eight of the 18 City Councilmen expires next April, eight more will be elected for the period of a year.

Five Commissioners will be elected in 1919. Their names will appear on the ballots in alphabetical order, and the five receiving the highest number of votes will be declared elected. They will then assign the departments by a majority vote. The Commissioner assigned to the Department of Public Affairs will be known as Mayor, and will receive a salary of $4500 a year. The other Commissioners will get $4000 each.

The other departments are Accounts and Finance, Public Health and Safety, Street and Public Improvements, and Public Property. The first will have charge of the work now done by the City Treasurer and City Comptroller. The Commissioner of Health and Safety will have charge of the Health Department, and will have general supervision of the fire and police, although the Police Board will be continued. The Commissioner of Streets and Public Improvements will take charge of the work now done by the Street Commissioner and the Board of Local Improvements, and the Commissioner of Public Property will have charge of all public buildings and other city property.

Referendum on Franchises.
Under the new plan franchises to public service corporations may be granted only by a majority vote of the people.

A statement of all receipts and disbursements must be printed in pamphlet form once a month and distributed to all persons desiring it. There must also be an audit of the books annually by a certified accountant.

The law provides that the commissioners must devote all their time to the city's business. All meetings of the commission must be open, thus doing away with the "secret caucus," which has been a regular part of the City Council's proceedings for several years.

20 FEDERAL INDICTMENTS FOUND IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Three Persons Accused Under the Mann Act; Robbery of Box Cars Charged in Seven Cases.

Twenty indictments charging 35 persons with law violations were returned by the Federal grand jury in East St. Louis today. Among those indicted was Harry Cheek, alias Sitlow, charged with violating the Mann act. The accusation alleges he has a wife in Dayton, O., and another in Indiana, and that he eloped to East St. Louis with another Indiana man's wife. James Catron and Edna Morris were indicted under the Mann act, it being alleged they traveled from state to state, representing they were married. Seven indictments charging box car robberies were returned. Henry C. Wright was charged with embezzling from the mails at Gilman, Ill., where he was a postoffice employee.

Three things you want

Style, comfort and economy in your coat

There's style in the military touches in our young men's overcoats; there's comfort in the easy and free draping; there's economy in the long wearing all-wool and in the sturdiness of fine tailoring.

Ask the merchant who sells our clothes to show you the many style variations in our overcoats; then ask to see the label—it's sewed in and means absolute satisfaction for you.

'HONOR SYSTEM' FAILS IN TRIAL AT THE CITY JAIL

Man for Whom Warden Got Parole and Job as Jail Nurse Disappears.

DEBTS ARE LEFT BEHIND

Warden Says Frank Friend
Cashied Several Worthless
Checks Before Leaving.

The first "honor system" experiment of John M. McCully, Warden of the city jail, has resulted in the disappearance of Frank Friend, formerly a prisoner and later nurse at the jail. In departing, Friend left behind debts and worthless checks, according to the Warden. Surgical instruments belonging to the medical staff also are missing.

Friend was sent to jail for one year, April 17, last, after pleading guilty to a charge of attempting to rob the home of Mrs. Cora Schmidt of 4130 A Arsenal street.

He told Warden McCully he had studied medicine and was an expert nurse. While a prisoner he gave valuable aid to the dispensary physicians assigned to the jail and was willing, day or night, to nurse other prisoners who were ill.

Paroled and Given a Job.

The Warden believed Friend had reformed. At his instance, Friend was paroled Sept. 25 last, and McCully, with the consent of the Efficiency Board, put him on the payroll as jail nurse at a salary of $40 a month. He lived at the jail, but was free to go and come as he pleased.

McCully, on Oct. 27, received a telephone message from a downtown department store saying Friend had brought $23 worth of goods there on credit. That night, a Saturday, Friend did not return to the jail. When he arrived there Sunday morning it was evident he had been drinking. McCully reprimanded him and he expressed sorrow for his lapse.

Friend Fails to Return.

That night Friend told McCully he was aiding doctors in a case at St. John's Hospital and obtained permission to go there. He never returned.

The Warden has been unable to find Friend, but his investigation has shown, he says, that the missing "honor man" cashied worthless checks at a cigar store and at Oscar Lindberg's saloon at Twelfth street and Clark avenue.

The check passed on Lindberg was for $40. Like the others, it was drawn on the Mercantile Trust Co., where Friend had an account.

CONSTANTINE GAVE ASSURANCE OF NO MOVE AGAINST GERMANY

Telegram to Kaiser Consented to Use of Drama-Series Railway by Central Powers.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A dispatch to Reuters' Limited from Athens says another series of telegrams which were dispatched to Berlin during the regime of King Constantine have been published, and that they show secret efforts of the Greek King to help the Germans win the war. One of these dispatches, dated Jan. 21, 1916, follows:

"The King of Greece pledges his word to the German Emperor that in no circumstances shall any soldier or native be employed by the royal Government against the German troops or their allies. Greece consents to the use of the Drama-Series Railway by Germany and her allies."

Another telegram, dated two days later, says the correspondent, explains that the journeys of Prince Nicholas and Prince Andre to Petrograd and London had no political character. It says the visits were extended "to draw closer the bonds which existed between the royal house of Greece and the courts of London and Petrograd—bonds which of late have very much relaxed."

In later telegrams the correspondent concludes, King Constantine bewailed that he could not do what he wanted to do because of entente pressure and the blockade.

BABY, PURSUED IN 3 STATES, CAUSES PARENTS' REMARRIAGE

Mother, After Divorce, Followed Father and Child From Texas to Missouri: Reconciliation Resulted.

SEDALIA, Mo., Nov. 7.—The 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Davis has been carried across three states by her father, with her mother and an attorney in close pursuit, with the result that the couple has become reconciled.

When she was divorced in Dallas the mother obtained custody of the child. Davis came to Sedalia with the baby, and Mrs. Davis, arriving soon afterward, called on the police for aid. The father and baby were pursued in an automobile and overtaken. Love for the child reunited the couple, who were remarried here today.

Man Injured at Waterworks Dies.
Pat Brogan, 22 years old, of 2617 Cass avenue, fireman at the waterworks pumping station at Baden, North St. Louis, who was scalded yesterday morning when an inner tube in a boiler burst, died at 4 p. m. at the city hospital. The accident cut off the city water supply in certain sections of the city for about three hours.

2 1/4 Acre Store

Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney's Anniversary Sale

This Anniversary Sale is the biggest thing we ever planned, and it is proving to be just what we have planned. Every section of this store is participating in the Great Event. It is no small matter for a store to increase its floor space from two and a quarter acres to fifteen acres.

in the short space of ten years' time—and that is exactly what this store has done. Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney is a big metropolitan institution and stands foremost in this community as the favorite shopping place.

Tomorrow will be Men's Day, and every Department for Men is making an effort to demonstrate its value-giving ability.

Tomorrow—Men's Clothing Day

The Story

We would not think of letting this big Anniversary Sale come and go without a strong appeal to the men of St. Louis.

--therefore

—weeks ago, we bought the entire surplus stock of fine woolen Suitings and Overcoatings from a leading manufacturer, and instructed him to make these Suitings and Overcoatings in the latest approved styles.

We have not overlooked the man of any age, but have provided for all, in that there are styles in the assortment for every man.

The sale starts Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, and we know that the regular patrons of our Clothing Department will be quick to respond and take advantage of this opportunity. If you have never bought a Suit or Overcoat here, this sale may be the means of directing you to an economical and profitable place to buy your clothes.

What do you think?
Will you be here?

--the Overcoats

represent a collection greater than anything we have ever shown. All the new models are represented; included are Overcoats made of foreign and domestic woolens, in styles for young men and older men.

Three great groups are arranged for this Anniversary Sale:

$24^{.75}

--the two other groups at $14.75 and $19.75

Here you will see a demonstration of value-giving that the men of St. Louis will not forget in many a day!

We bought the entire surplus stock of materials from the well-known manufacturing concern of Louis Holtz & Sons Inc.

Here is a manufacturer in Rochester, New York, from whom we buy hundreds and hundreds of Suits and Overcoats every season, therefore he was willing to make great concessions in price in order to help us prove that this Anniversary Sale is the greatest event the store ever experienced, and that men share in the offerings in a way that they never did before.

--the Suits

consist of every good style of the season, including the "Fox-Glove" model; materials are of both domestic and foreign woolens—Scotch Cheviots, Irish Woolens and many English and American weaves. Many of the Suits are full-lined—some half-lined and some quarter-lined—materials of medium and Winter weights, making it possible for these Suits to be worn in Winter, late Fall and early Spring.

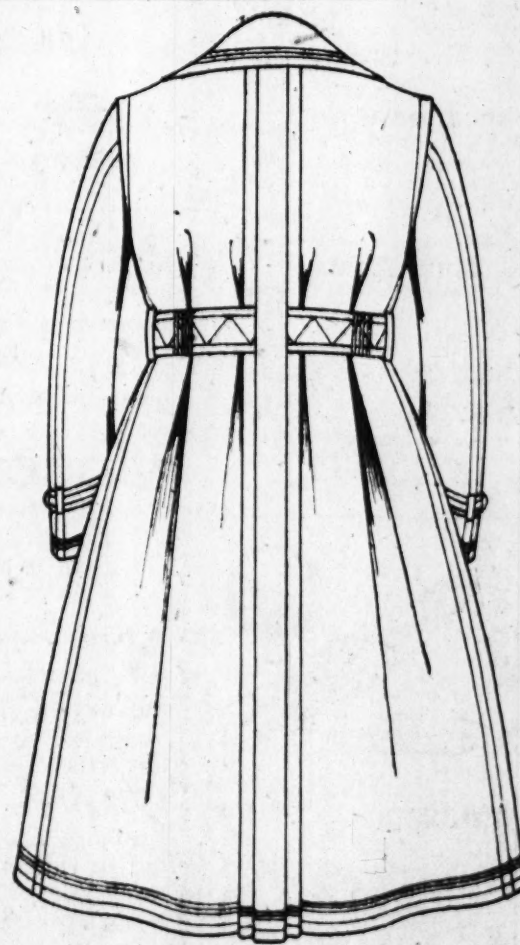

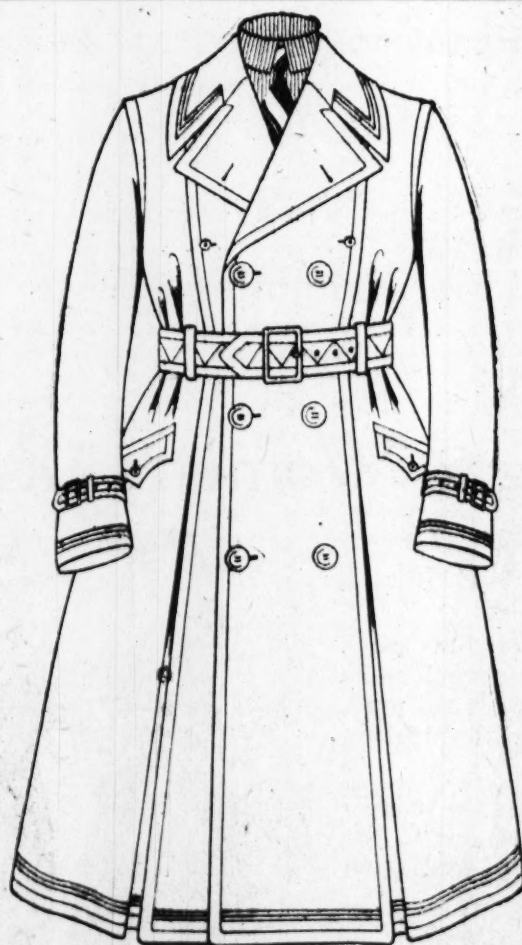

There are young men's models, as well as for the older men—the greatest collection of Suits this store has ever shown—arranged in three great Anniversary groups.

$24^{.75}

--the two other groups, $14.75 and $19.75

Extra Trousers

Every man can add a pair of Trousers, thereby making his clothes last nearly twice as long. We were fortunate in securing from the same manufacturer, several hundred pairs of Trousers made from short-end Suitings. The sale price of these Trousers will be $6.00

HOW RASPUTIN PLOTTED TO RULE RUSSIAN STATE AS HE RULED THE ARMY

He Intrigued for Appointment of Sturmer as Premier, Knowing He Would Despoil Country in Time of War and Thus Enable Rasputin to Show Himself a Prophet Again.

This is the sixteenth installment of Princess Radziwill's hitherto unpublished book, "The Truth About Rasputin."

By PRINCESS RADZIWILL.

Daughter of a Russian Count and herself a member of the Imperial set in St. Petersburg before the Revolution.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

WHEN the Grand Duke had been appointed Viceroy of the Caucasus, and had left his new residence, Rasputin breathed freely once more. For one thing, this incident had given him a greater confidence in his own strength than he had ever possessed before.

Now that he had been able to remove the Commander in Chief of the Russian armies from his post, it seemed to him that it would be a relatively easy thing to push forward, and to appoint to the most important functions in the state people indoctrinated with his view, and ready to help him in keeping the Russian army and the Russian people in a relatively unchallenged position into which he had guided so naturally, and as now appeared to him, so simply—a position which he was absolutely determined not to lose.

With a Prime Minister at his command, the world became the "real master of Russia, and the Czar himself would be compelled to take him into account, a thing which up to then he had refused to do, much to the distress of the "Prophet." Though he repeated everywhere, and to whoever wished to listen to him, that he could do all he liked at Tsar'skoe Selo, he knew very well in his inmost heart that such was not the case, and that in the imperial palace Rasputin was nothing but a "Prophet," an ignorant peasant, endowed sometimes with gifts of second sight and always with religious fervor, but a peasant all the same, with whom one might pray, but whom one would never dream of appointing to any responsible position.

Rasputin Harbors Ambitions.

The knowledge that such was the case, and that his so-called influence existed mostly in the imagination of the people who spoke about it, worried Rasputin. Though he dictated to ministers his will, though he decided together with them more than one important matter, yet he felt that there was a flaw in the edifice of his fortune, and that this flaw consisted in the fact that the sovereign did not share the feeling of reverence which the Russian nation, as the "Prophet" flattered himself, was the case, experienced for his person and for his teachings. This was what tormented him, and he spent the whole time thinking how it might become possible to put in the place of Mr. Gorenkyne another Prime Minister more ready to enter into his views and to follow his advice in regard to matters of state. This then President of Council in spite of his deference for Rasputin, had refused to do, preferring to discuss the affairs of the Government alone with the Emperor, without any interference of the former.

Rasputin spoke of his wishes to some of his confidants, and even mentioned the subject to several of the high-born ladies who formed the best bulk of his "clientele." These entered into his views with alacrity, the more so as he developed them in a pathetic tone, which appealed to their feelings of "patriotism." They would have given much to be able to help him, but they did not very well know how this was to be done. This was due to the sad fact that they had no one under their hand. The unexpected and sudden death of Count Witte, which had occurred in the meanwhile, removed the only person whom they could suggest as a candidate for the functions of Prime Minister. All those whose names might have been mentioned as fit individuals for the post, such as Mr. Krivosheine, for instance, were people who would, with a greater energy even than Mr. Gorenkyne had ever displayed, oppose any interference of Rasputin into the conduct of the Government. Their perplexity might have lasted a long time if Providence, in the shape of Manusewitsch Manuiloff, had not interfered in their favor, and had the latter not suggested the advisability of entering into negotiations with Mr. Sturmer.

CHAPTER VII.

Mr. Sturmer was not a novice in politics and he was known to be a reactionary of the blackest water. It is likely that even Rasputin's friends would never have given a thought to the possibility of his becoming Prime Minister if Count Witte had still been in the land of the living. With the latter's death the sort of coalition or secret society that had coalesced through the occult influence of the "Prophet" to rise to power had lost its best head. There was no one to take his place, officially at least, because with the best will in the world it was impossible to suggest as a candidate for a ministerial portfolio Manusewitsch Manuiloff. The past record of this man did not permit him to play any role but that of the Pere Joseph of a Minister who was not a Richelieu. And though the secret position of principal adviser to a personage of the importance of Rasputin had its advantages, it nevertheless precluded the possibility of becoming a candidate for the place of a statesman.

Sturmer Not Entirely Satisfactory.

The next best thing, therefore, was to find some one who would be willing to become consciously what the "Prophet" was unconsciously, the instrument of the vile crew whose am-friends would have cared to put forward.

On the other hand, Mr. Sturmer, for personal reasons into which it is useless to enter here, when approached by Manusewitsch Manuiloff, had not hesitated a single moment in promising to endorse the purposes of the small group of persons who had made up their minds to become the real rulers of the state. As soon as he had declared his willingness to join with them in the future an energetic campaign was started in his favor, not in the press nor in the Duma, nor even among the public, but in the immediate vicinity of the sovereign, a campaign in which some of the highest authorities in the Greek Church were enrolled, and in which the Emperor himself was persuaded by some of her personal friends to take part.

The expected result occurred. The Czar was finally persuaded that in Mr. Sturmer he would find a faithful servant, which in a certain sense he did, and also a Minister determined to govern according to the old principles of autocracy with an utter disregard for the liberal party, as well as for the Duma. The Duma had not spared the Government during the whole summer, and its activity had been viewed with dismay by certain members. Yet the country was glad to find that at last there existed among its representatives men courageous enough to say what they thought, and to try to save Russia from the abyss into which it was felt that she was falling through the influence not so much of Rasputin himself as of those who surrounded him and who used him for their own ends.

The Appointment of Sturmer.

This campaign succeeded and Mr. Sturmer was appointed. His selection caused an outcry of indignation throughout the whole country, and distressed its best friends for more than one reason. But even among the functionaries of the ministry, which had to accept him as its chief, there were found some rebellious spirits, among whom was the then Minister of the Interior, Mr. Chwostoff, who made up their minds that it was at last high time to get rid of Rasputin in some manner or other. He was also a reactionary, like Mr.

Sturmer, and even a furious one. When he was still a Deputy in the Duma he had been one of the leaders of the faction of the right and before that time had made for himself the reputation of being an ultra-conservative in all the different administrative posts which he had occupied.

The fact is that about the beginning of the year 1916 people were startled by hearing of a new conspiracy against Rasputin, in which it was rumored that the Minister of the Interior himself was a party. Things stood thus: A secret agent of the Russian police called Rzewsky, a man about as unscrupulous as Manusewitsch Manuiloff but not so clever, who had already figured more than once in occasions when the need for a provocative agent had been felt, arrived in Christiania, in Norway, where the unfrocked monk Illiodore was living, and sought him out. His journey had been undertaken without the knowledge of the Chief of the secret police, Mr. Bieletsky, but on the express orders of Mr. Chwostoff, the Minister of the Interior. Bieletsky, however, had suspected that some underhand game was going on, and had caused Rzewsky to be watched. When the latter had crossed the frontier at Tornoe he had been thoroughly searched and examined by special orders received from Petrograd, without, however, anything suspicious being found on him. When he was questioned as to the reasons for his journey abroad he had, in order to be allowed to proceed, to own that it was undertaken by command of the Minister of the Interior.

Plans for Separate Peace Fermenting.

After the resignation, or rather the dismissal, of Chwostoff, his post was finally offered, by the advice of Rasputin and at the suggestion of

"With a Prime Minister at his command Rasputin would become the real master of Russia, and the Czar himself would be compelled to take him into account, a thing which up to then he had refused to do."—Princess Radziwill.

Manusewitsch-Manuiloff, to its occupant at the time I write, Mr. Prottopoff, a rich land owner of the Government of Simbirsk, who for some time had occupied the position of Vice President of the Duma of the empire.

Just before his appointment to what is the most important and responsible position in the whole Russian empire, there was much talk of an interview which he had had at Stockholm with Mr. Warberg, a representative of the German Government, during which the conditions by which a separate peace might come to be concluded between Russia and the central empires had been discussed. Later on, when this meeting, which had been arranged through the good offices of a Mr. Malintak, became the subject of general knowledge in Stockholm, and details concerning it had found their way into the press, Mr. Prottopoff was violently attacked by the Liberal parties in the Duma, which accused him of treason and refused even to listen to the clumsy explanations which he attempted to give of the affair.

It was then generally believed that the political career of this gentleman was at an end, and it was assumed that he would have to resign his vice presidency in the House. Certainly no one ever thought that he would suddenly develop into a Minister. And yet, this is the very thing which happened, thanks to the Rasputin crew, which persuaded Sturmer to present Prottopoff to the Emperor as the best candidate for the place vacated by Chwostoff. In the meantime, Manusewitsch-Manuiloff, who had been the moving spirit in the whole intrigue, had been appointed private secretary to Sturmer, and at his instigation there began dissipation of public funds such as Russia had never seen before, and such, as, let us hope, she will never see again.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

ST. LOUISAN TELLS OF FIRING GUN IN FRANCE

William Kelso Writes About the Sites and the Noise Three Miles Behind the Front.

From soccer football in St. Louis to firing big guns in France is the change which has been made by William (Scotty) Kelso, former star of the local soccer league. He is a member of the Twelfth Engineers' Regiment, and in a letter to his brother, Charles Kelso, of 4758 Greer avenue, he tells of his experiences. Under a "Somewhere in France" date, he says:

"All about me there are nothing but ruins. No civilians here. Everything is military. I was out at one of the 9.2. Guns last night and had the pleasure of firing it. I had cotton in my ears. It sure makes some noise. The fellow who had charge of it wears a G. He belongs in Scotland, a fine fellow. Plenty of them here. There was a German airplane flying over us, but it did not stay long in sight, as the aircraft guns all took a crack at it. All kinds of sights like that here."

"I could have a fine collection of pictures if I had a chance but they took our cameras from us. I will send you some pictures to give you an idea of things."

"We have the Canadian soldiers visiting us every night. There are plenty of Scotch here, too, and all fine fellows. They bring in all kind of souvenirs. I guess I will have some before I return home, if all goes well."

"We hear some great stories about the front. We are about three miles from the front line. Plenty of noise. There is a lot of betting here that peace will be declared by the first of the year. A number of the boys are homesick, but I guess they will get over it soon. I am not allowed to tell anything that is military."

"We have our new army boots and they are some boots. weigh a ton and my ankles are in fact, the ankles of all the fellows are sore because we have to wear boiler socks. The socks are very thin."

Turkey Pays All Revenue to Interests. ATHENS, Nov. 7.—Nearly all Turkey's annual revenue is taken up by the payment of interest on her national debt, according to the report of the Turkish Ministry of Finance in the course of this debate in the Turkish Parliament on the budget for 1917. The total debt was given as 297,000,000 pounds sterling on which the interest charges 18,000,000 pounds. The total revenue for next year is estimated at 19,500,000 pounds.

Smart Clothes

To look "all dressed up" is right enough for the shaved and scented poodle with his Sunday bow on. However, for The Well-Dressed Man to be turned out with finished smartness is a habit, not an anniversary; an occurrence, not an occasion; an episode of the hour and day, not an epoch of the week or month.

You won't look "all dressed up" in a STEIN-BLOCH Suit or Topcoat, but you'll have that finished smartness born of wearing clothes which are one and indivisible with your personality.

A man's dress should be as much the individual and exclusive expression of himself as the cast of his features, or of the color of his eyes, or the swing of his stride, or the way he smiles.

Only STEIN-BLOCH, the Supreme Exponent of the Mastery and Mystery of Style succeeds, through the artistry of genuinely fine custom handiwork, in making the wearer's clothes personally and possessively his own, so that in admiring the grace you forget the garment, and in applauding the effect you forget the effort.

Dominant Personality is every man's goal in America, where the new-world Aristocracy of Brains and Breeding has supplanted the old-world Aristocracy of Birth and Brag.

The STEIN-BLOCH Suit or Topcoat at $25 shares equally with its fellow at $55 this dominant personality. We are the exclusive agents in St. Louis.

DON'T LET WIFE DIE OF LOCKJAW

Warn Her Against Cutting Corns
Because They Can Be Lifted Out.

Women wear high heels which buckle up their toes and they suffer terribly from corns. Women then proceed to trim these pests, seeking relief, but they hardly realize the terrible danger from infection, says a Cincinnati authority.

Corns can easily be lifted out with the fingers if you will get from any drug store a quarter of an ounce of a drug called freezezone. This is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. You simply apply a few drops directly upon the tender, aching corn. The soreness is relieved at once and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain.

This is a sticky substance which dries in a moment. It just shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Cut this out and pin on your wife's dresser.—ADV.

ANOTHER HEARING ON U. R. BILL IS SET FOR NEXT TUESDAY

Aldermanic Committee Chairman Calls Meetings "Necessary Nuisances."

ADOPTION OF PLAN URGED

Supporters of Measure at Hearing Favor Accepting Settlement Plan Without Analysis

At least one more public hearing on the bill contemplating a "settlement" between the city and the United Railways will be conducted by the aldermanic Public Utilities Committee, which had planned to terminate open discussion of the measure last night. The hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Chairman Barney L. Schwartz in a colloquy with Stephen H. Butler of the Central Trades and Labor Union

Worse Off Than Before

Nearly all cough syrups or "balms" contain opiates or straining drugs. If you take them when you have a cold you will suffer from constipation, because of these drugs.

Without alcohol, opiates or any injurious drugs, Father John's Medicine has had more than 60 years of success for colds, coughs and throat trouble.

characterized public hearings on the bill as "necessary nuisances."

"These hearings might give us an expression of sentiment," said Alderman Schwartz, "but what good is that?"

Schwartz's description of the hearings as "necessary nuisances" was in answer to Butler's reminder to the committee that President McCulloch of the United Railways had been allowed an aggregate of five hours to express his opinion of the bill at a conference from which the public was excluded. Butler left with the committee a copy of a complaint made by him and others to the State Public Service Board regarding the overcrowding of cars in alleged violation of its order of May 4, 1915, the details of which were published exclusively in yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

Butler requested that time be given the Central Trades and Labor Union to act on the bill at its regular meeting next Sunday, and declared that the committee should not "jam the measure through."

100 Copies for Public.

"We had 100 copies of the bill made for the public and we thought it should be the public opportunity to study its provisions," Schwartz replied.

At last night's hearing, advocates of the bill were about as numerous as its opponents. With two or three exceptions those favoring the committee's amended bill urged its passage without attempting to analyze or defend its specific provisions. Several of those who recommended immediate adoption of the "settlement" outlined in the new measure were holders of United Railways securities.

Fred Mackensen, who says he is a cousin of the German General, Von Mackensen, and who resembles the Teutonic commander, was a loud proponent of prompt passage of the bill.

"The company should be allowed to have a capitalization of $70,000,000; the mill tax should be abolished and no tax on the corporation's income should be assessed," Mackensen contended. "Give the company a franchise for 50 years instead of 30 years. Protect the innocent buyers of its stocks."

Others Advocate Adoption.

Mackensen says he was born in the United States, but he speaks with a strong German accent. His parents, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter, informed him that he was related to the German General of the same name. Mackensen announced that he represented himself, the Gravois Business Men's Association, the Newport Improvement Association and the Economy Improvement Association in behalf of the bill.

Others who recommended the adoption of the committee's bill and complimented the work of the committee, were John H. Dieckman, a stock broker, and owner of some of the company's securities; James M. Rollins, an attorney; H. S. Glick of the Junior Citizens' Association, which was organized by H. N. Morgan, superintendent of the workhouse, one of Mayor Kiel's appointees; John E. Turner, an attorney; H. L. Schaefer of the Southampton Improvement Association; F. G. Hoelzle, secretary of the Economy Improvement Association; H. H. Mensendick of the Progressive Business Men's Association; Nic. Pelligreen, owner of United Railways shares; George F. Ernst of the Leschen Rope Co.; G. A. Pauly, a preferred stockholder, and C. L. Chittenden.

Says Public Wants Only Service.

Dieckman argued that so long as the city controls the company's earnings, it makes no difference whether the capitalization permitted is $60,000,000 or $600,000,000. It would be difficult, he said, to get the consent of shareholders and bondholders to the reduction of the company's capital value from $104,000,000 to $60,000,000. Those who bought bonds and stocks at par will be unwilling to accept a third of what they paid, he said.

The public is not concerned whether the United Railways pays taxes or not, John E. Turner declared. The people are interested only in service, he explained, and he suggested that the tax on the company's earnings be reduced to 1 per cent and that the surplus be devoted to extensions and equipment.

President McCulloch criticized the published statement that he was not "emphatic" in his protests against the committee's amendments when he appeared before it last week. He said the owners of United Railways stocks and bonds would be reluctant to accept the "settlement" proposed.

Regrets Changes in Bills.

"The company made great concessions on the theory that the city was to become its partner and share its risks. That's why we consented to a reduction of capitalization below true value. The present ordinance exacts 3 per cent of our gross earnings and imposes a surtax. It is unfair to take the good features from ordinances No. 1 and No. 2 and incorporate them in a new bill while eliminating everything that was good for the company."

"The effect of these amendments is to change the franchise and we protest vigorously against them. We are profoundly regretful that you made changes in an ordinance that we felt the owners of our securities could accept. I suggest that you recommend for passage either ordinance No. 1 or No. 2."

The North St. Louis Business Men's Association opposed the amended bills, its representative, A. C. Hiltz said, because the objections originally urged had not been removed. These were that the city vests control of the company in a board instead of in its elective officials; that the right to tax should not be contracted away, and that the purchase price of $60,000,000, with allowances for additions, opened the way to inflation of the company's capitalization.

Would Insure 5-Cent Fare.

The Civic League reiterated its previous opposition, and Secretary Budenz contended that, "notwithstanding all this camouflage," the amended bill was substantially ordinance No. 2. He said the company's power contracts, which, although covering its supply of electric energy, were based on the price of coal, would prevent the earning of any net surplus. The price of coal is steadily advancing, Budenz said, and the cost of the company's current under the contracts will rise correspondingly.

Budenz said that the provision for a 5-cent fare should permit its application to any territory that may hereafter be added to the city present area. The committee's bill, he added, contracted away the city's right of taxation in the same way that was proposed under ordinance No. 2.

P. J. Grimes, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, was applauded by opponents of the bill for many of his criticisms of its provisions. "The company should come into court with clean hands," Grimes said, "before it asks for more credit, its old debts should be paid. Before we enter into any further agreement with this company, we ought to see its books. Its past relations with the city have not been those of an honest person. The men in the North American Co. have been working for two years to put this deal through—and they are the same that defrauded the United Railways through the power of contracts."

JAPAN'S SPECIAL FINANCE MISSION
VISITS ST. LOUIS

Members, Guests of Chamber of Commerce, to Inspect Shoe Plants and See City.

WHAT JAPAN IS DOING

Baron Tanetaro Megata, Head of Mission, Says Shipbuilding Material Is Needed.

The Special Finance Commission of Japan to the United States, headed by Baron Tanetaro Megata, is being entertained in St. Louis today by the Chamber of Commerce.
The commission, consisting of nine members and accompanied by six secretaries and two newspaper correspondents, arrived in St. Louis at 6:30 last night, making this its first stop since arriving at San Francisco last Saturday. The party will remain here until tomorrow night.
The day's program included an inspection of the plants of the Brown Shoe Co., and the Wagner Electric Co., in the forenoon, luncheon at the Planters Hotel, an automobile tour of the residential sections and city parks in the afternoon and dinner at the St. Louis Club in the evening.

"I am very tired. It was a long trip from San Francisco—three nights," Baron Megata said at the beginning of his interview at the Planters last night with a Post-Dispatch reporter, in which he discussed from the Japanese viewpoint some of the economic questions it the purpose of his commission to study in this country. When the reporter called at his room he said:
"Let us go downstairs." In the lobby he selected seats in the corridor leading to the dining room. He is a Harvard graduate and speaks English.

Must Look Forward.
"Our country and your country must look forward," he said. "Japan has been in the war three years.
You have only lately started, but soon you will find that there are certain economic questions that are perhaps more important than military questions, and which will become more important if the war is to go on.

"It is true Japan has not been in the field with her soldiers, but she has furnished supplies, ammunition and other things. We have been doing all we could in that respect. All our ships have been busy, and we have had some sunk. Most of the ammunition we make goes to Russia, but we have sent some to the other European allies. Some of our ships have traveled around Africa to get there. Others have gone through the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean."

The orchestra in the dining room suddenly began to play, almost drowning the Baron's calm, even voice. He arose, with a shake of his head, and more secluded seats were found. "I am waiting for my bath to be prepared, you know," he explained.

Japan's Effort in War.
"Japan is not exhausted," the Baron continued. "She is putting forth more effort today than ever before.
War means more than fighting. We must keep commerce going and must see that there is a steady flow of supplies of the things our allies need.

"We must prepare for the future—your country and mine. We should co-operate in our industrial affairs.
Through co-operation and an intelligent exchange of materials we should be able greatly to increase our products."

"What about ships to carry these products?" the reporter asked.

"That is the question. We are doing all we can to build more. We are building them all the time. But it is not enough. More and more ships are necessary. If we in Japan are to increase our production of ships we must have iron and steel from somewhere."

Materials Needed Now.

"Can't you get these materials from China?" he was asked.

"Ah, maybe; many years from now. We need it today. In China it would take too long.
There must be mills and smelters built to produce these materials.
We must get them somewhere else or we can't build many more ships."

He was asked about the possibility of Japanese soldiers participating on one of the battle fronts.

"That is a very high political question," he replied, "and as I am only representing my Government in economic and financial matters I am not competent to discuss it."

He pointed out that the Japanese navy, in addition to guarding the Pacific water, has sent a fleet of torpedo-boat destroyers to the Mediterranean, where it is co-operating with the destroyers of the allies.
He was gratified that an agreement announced yesterday by Secretary of State Lansing had been reached between his country and the United States concerning China, but he could not discuss it because it was a political question.

"My bath should be ready," he said, "and so I will bid you goodnight and tell you more another time."

The agreement concerning China was pointed to by Dr. Seiji Hishida, Secretary Interpreter to the Government General of Cho-sen (Korea), another member of the commission, as proof of the unselfishness of Japan. "We are not a selfish nation," he said. "We could have taken North China any time

This has been accomplished by rebuilding with steel under frames, steel vestibules and steel sheathing on the sides.

In addition to the factor of safety, fifty years of experience

LAX-FOS WITH PEPSIN IS AN IMPROVED CASCARA

You know the value of CASCARA in the home as a Laxative. The reason LAX-FOS is an improvement over the CASCARA alone is that the other roots and herbs combined with it make it both a Laxative and Liver Tonic, and the Pepsin relieves any indigestion or stomach disturbance which is most always present with those needing a laxative or liver medicine. One bottle will convince any family that LAX-FOS is better than CASCARA alone, for the Child, for the Mother, for the whole Household. Palatable and pleasant to take. Does not gripe. LAX-FOS is not a secret or patent medicine, but is compounded of the following old-fashioned roots and herbs in liquid form:

PEPSIN
CASCARA BARK
BLUE FLAG ROOT
RHUBARB ROOT
BLACK ROOT
MAY APPLE ROOT

This combination makes LAX-FOS a Digestive Liquid Laxative, Cathartic and Liver Tonic. Price 50c. Small doses small price. Average for children 50 doses 50c. Average for Adults 20 doses.

LAX-FOS is made and recommended to the public by PARIS MEDICINE CO., Manufacturers of LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE and GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILI TONIC, St. Louis, Mo.

Accomplishing Most Wonderful Results

"I want to thank you for your wonderful oil," states Mr. J. C. Gibson of Jonesboro, Ark. My little girl was very low with diphtheria. I had given her two doses of medicine which cost me $20, with no result. I bought a bottle of your oil, and one application relieved her. Now she is well. It is the greatest remedy I ever saw. Mr. Gibson made this statement before hundreds of people. Mrs. Florence Meacham, 24, Whitely St., Hartford, Conn., writes: "I have used your Antiseptic Oil for neuralgia with good effects. Only thing I ever tried that stopped the pain immediately." Mrs. William Gadsden, Ala., writes: "I have used your great Snake Oil for rheumatism, stiff joints, also for sore throat, and I want to say that it is the greatest remedy I ever tried. I recommend it to all sufferers. Many others reported almost daily from thousands of grateful users of this wonderful oil. Even not to be guaranteed. POSTAL EMPLOYEES HAD COMPLAINED OF SELPH

Minister Explains This Is Basis of Church Request for Inquiry Into His Conduct.

The Rev. William G. Johnston, pastor of the Hammett Place Christian Church, today said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that the efforts of pastors of churches of the Christian denomination in St. Louis to obtain an investigation of the personal and official conduct of Postmaster Selph, requested in a telegram sent to Postmaster-General Burleson Monday, were based on complaints of present or former postal employees, and on investigations the ministers had made.

The information involves allegations that employees have not been fairly treated, that he has been overbearing toward many employees, and that he has demanded that certain employees, who were under the civil service, request reductions in salary that their places with higher salaries might be given to political followers of the Postmaster.

"In addition to his conduct in the Postoffice, information has come to us which seems to us to justify an investigation of the personal conduct of the Postmaster on several occasions," the Rev. Mr. Johnston said.

Selph's term as Postmaster will not expire until his successor is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Selph is supported by Senator Reed, whose opposition to the administration has resulted in the widening of the gulf between him and the President, and many politicians do not believe the President would appoint a Reed man.

Friends of Reed and Selph, however, taking the position that Reed, by invoking senatorial courtesy, could prevent the confirmation of a successor to Selph if he desired.

SWEDISH OFFICERS ACCUSED OF SENDING WOOL TO GERMANY

Documents Produced in London Prize Court Show Consignment to Sweden Was for Enemy.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Swedish army officials were accused of conspiring to furnish millions of dollars' worth of wool to Germany, in the course of an action in the Prize Court here recently. The case concerned a shipment of 1500 bales of wool, consigned to the Swedish army, but destined, according to the Attorney-General, for a German firm in Leipzig. The shipment is valued at $700,000, being only one of several seized on route from Argentina.

Intercepted documents, produced in court, showed that the wool was not intended to remain in Sweden. That the Swedish army had no intention of using the wool was indicated, it was asserted, by the fact that its representatives made no appearance in the court and put in no claim to the cargo.

It was stated in court that the British authorities in the past had allowed several shipments of wool similarly consigned to the Swedish Army Administration to pass, in the confidence that the official nature of the consignees rendered it possible to accept their assurances.

FINLAND TO BE REPUBLIC ATTACHED TO RUSSIA

Will Have Legislature and Elected Ruler Under Plans Agreed to by Moscow Government.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A Petrograd dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says: "The Provisional Government Monday night accepted draft plans regarding the Government of Finland. These aim at direct establishment of cordial relations between Finland and Russia, but to have its own legislative institutions and Government. Also, it is to be declared a republic, with the supreme executive power intrusted in an elected ruler.

"War and peace-making power is to be vested in the state jurisdiction conformable to the Russian fundamental laws. Foreign treaty-making power is conceded to the Russian Government. The legislative power will be exercised by the Diet, in conjunction with the ruling head. The general administrative power will be exercised by a ministerial council."

PROF. GEPHART TELLS PLAN FOR FOOD WORK HERE

Chairman of Committee Just Named to Urge Conservation and Substitution.

REASONABLE PROFITS

People Will Be Asked to Save on Wheat, Meats, Fats and and Sugar, Soldiers Needs.

Prof. W. F. Gephart, dean of the Washington University School of Commerce, who yesterday was appointed chairman of a committee of three to handle the work in St. Louis of State and national food administration, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the efforts of the committee will be directed especially to educating the public along the lines of conservation and food substitution.

Prof. Gephart was appointed by State Food Administrator Mumford.
The other members of the committee are S. P. Goddard, vice president of the Goodfard Grocery Co., and Charles Hertenstein, chairman of the Efficiency Board.

The new committee will hold its first meeting within a few days when plans will be made for the opening of a downtown office.

Mumford Outlines Work.

The appointment of the committee followed the first meeting in St.
Louis of Administrator Mumford with the St. Louis Council of National Defense, held in the afternoon at the Planters Hotel. Mumford outlined in a general way what the work of the State Food Administration will be. Among those who attended were Melville L. Wilkinson, chairman of the local council and merchant representative of the United States Food Administration in Missouri, and Edward Hilden of St.
Louis, now a special agent for Food Administration Hoover.

Mumford told a Post-Dispatch reporter that a great deal of uncertainty exists in Missouri regarding the licensing work of the food administration. Every distributing agency doing a business of $100,000 a year or more should write immediately to Washington, he said, and ask the licensing department of the food administration for full information. Failure to do this, he pointed out, will cause a great deal of trouble for those who come within the provisions.

There is every evidence that wholesalers and retailers are in accord with the food administration, Mumford said.

Policy of Administration.

The policy of the food administration in Missouri in a general way will be confined to the following three principles:

To limit all prices to a reasonable profit.

To keep all food commodities moving in as direct a line as possible from producer to consumer.

To limit contracts for future delivery.

One of the regulations, in this connection, which Mumford outlined, is that contracts for the sale of certain commodities, to be announced later, will be limited to 45 days.

"While the licensing plan applies only to the companies doing an annual business of $100,000 or more," said Mumford, "the consumer will be protected from the smaller agencies of distribution by the provisions of the bill which prohibit excess profits, hoarding and speculation on the part of all dealers. It also will be possible to control the smaller concern by shutting off his supplies, if he engages in illegal practices under the food law."

"The consumer can't expect all the things to be straightened out now with the law only in effect a few days. It will take several weeks to work out a complete system."

Four Things Soldiers Need.

"The fact that any commodity may be scarce will not justify its price being raised out of all proportion.
The work of the Food Administration will largely be that of conservation, propaganda and the urging of substitution of foods for the four things our soldiers and the allies need most, wheat, meats, fats and sugar. There is no danger of the American people being called upon to go hungry, so long as they practice substitution, and the Indian corn crop continues to be good."

A publicity bureau, where a daily and weekly report will be issued to all newspapers, will be established in Columbia, Mo., the headquarters of the Federal Food Administration in Missouri, Mumford said.

depriving the hair roots of the stimulating nature intended, then the hair becomes faded, dry, brittle, scraggly and finally falls out—never to grow again unless the hair root is restored to a healthy condition. At the first sign of dandruff or any hair trouble use Parisian sage.
It's a scientific preparation that supplies all hair needs—there is nothing better. It not only immediately banishes every trace of dandruff but supplies the proper nourishment to the starved hair roots, stimulating them to grow new hair, thick and lustrous.

A scalp massage with Parisian sage is a pure delight, easy to use, not sticky or greasy, and delicately perfumed—an amber liquid free from dangerous lead or sulphur so perfectly harmless, and guaranteed not to color or streak the hair. It is preferred by discriminating women because it makes the hair soft, silky, wavy, easy to arrange, and appear heavier than it really is. A large bottle is not expensive at any drug store or toilet counter, but be sure to get Parisian sage (Gironx's) for this is always sold with guarantee that it must give perfect satisfaction or nothing to pay. There are no strings or red tape to this offer.—ADVERTISE-

REMARKS ABOUT
THE WAR CAUSE TEACHER'S OUSTERUniversity School Board Asks for Resignation of Delmar Principal.

DEFENDS HIS LOYALTY

J. S. Turley Says He Probably Did Not Make Himself Clear to Children.

Remarks about the war, which were "over the heads" of sixth-grade school children, and which made an unfavorable impression on a few passionately loyal young Americans, caused the University City School Board to call for the resignation of J. S. Turley, 32 years old, principal of the Delmar Public School. Turley, who lives at 4914 South Broadway, has retired from the principalship.

H. M. Buckley, Superintendent of the University City schools, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he did not believe Turley had said anything inconsistent with loyalty, but that he had not made himself clear to the children, and had caused some of them to think he meant what he did not really mean. In this way, Supt. Buckley said, it had come to appear that Turley was not adapted to the task of teaching children of the lower grades.

Turley Gives Details. "Turley himself went more into the details of his utterances. He said he was of a long line of American ancestry, and was thoroughly loyal, and that he had bought $200 worth of Liberty Bonds.

"Perhaps it is true that I did not make myself clear to the children," he said. "But what I said was in answer to their questions, and the matter was not brought up by me in the first place.

"In teaching geography, it is hard to keep out references to the war. In a lesson on European geography, one of the children asked a question about stories of atrocities, and others followed with similar questions, while some of them mentioned the killing of negroes in East St. Louis. One of them saying that it did not matter so much about the negroes.

Doesn't Favor Peace Now. "Replying to these questions, I said that the East St. Louis rioters had shown no better spirit than the Germans. I also said that not all stories of atrocities were true, and that Americans should not give way to a spirit of enmity. 'We should not desire, I said, to cause the Germans to suffer as much as they have made others suffer. To do this, I said, would invite future wars. I said we should cultivate the spirit of humanity and justice, and should not hate any people, even the Germans. I said that America should make peace on higher terms than those ordinarily made in treaties of peace, but I did not mean that America should make peace now, or before the proper time comes. However, I suppose these were the things that were misunderstood.

"There were matters of discipline which irritated some of the children, and I think these had something to do with the complaints."

CONGRESSMEN SEE U. S. TROOPS
AT PRACTICE IN FRANCE

Party Later Chats With Soldiers and Find Them in Good Shape, Physically and Cheerful.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 6.—The American Congressional party visited today the zone in which the troops are billeted and are receiving war instruction. They first visited headquarters in the town, but did not meet Gen. Pershing, who is in Paris. They went to Major-General Siber's headquarters and were taken out to see the American troops in practice. During the hand grenade instruction, pieces flew close to the Congressmen, who were enthusiastic over the energy and discipline of the troops, and when one Congressman called for three cheers for the boys, the party cheered itself hoarse.

Later the visitors went among the troops shaking hands, chatting and asking questions regarding the training. They especially commented on the physical fitness and cheerfulness of the American soldiers. They were told of Saturday's trench fight, and each was presented with shell cases of the first day's artillery firing against the Germans.

The Congressional party came from Verdun, where they inspected the defenses and were entertained by the French commanders.

Among the exclusive lamps, one could scarcely claim this one to be more charming than that—each makes its own individual appeal.

Our more distinctive lamps run from a bit of 16th-century Japanese art to rich and towering standards, topped with shades of imported silk damask, so heavy in weave and glorious in color they seem like rare old embroideries. PLAN TO RELIEVE CONGESTION IN STREETS OUTLINED Report Adopted by City Plan Commission Is Sent to Board of Public Service.

TO EXTEND BOULEVARDS

Drive on Bluffs Along River Included in Proposed Changes.

The general scheme of a plan to relieve traffic congestion and extend the city's boulevard system, was outlined yesterday afternoon at the monthly meeting of the City Plan Commission, held at the Mercantile Club.

The plan was embodied in a report made by the Streets Committee of the commission, and after a discussion was unanimously approved and sent to the Board of Public Service, with the recommendation that immediate action be taken to carry out the provisions of the plan.

General Provisions.
Details have not been worked out, but in a general way provision is made for the following street changes:

A new plan for the widening of Twelfth street, from Chouteau avenue to Park avenue.

A cut-off connecting Morgan street with Delmar boulevard, at Grand avenue, thus opening up Morgan street as a direct traffic artery from the eastern to the western sections of the city.

The widening of Twelfth street, north from Washington avenue to Florissant avenue, connecting that part of St. Louis, by a direct thoroughfare, with the downtown district.

Construction of a cut-off at grand avenue, so as to connect, at an angle, Lawton avenue with West Pine boulevard.

Widening of Morgan street from High street to Fourteenth street.

Widening of Vandeventer avenue from Market street to Manchester avenue.

Connecting Hodiament avenue with Skinker road.

Widening of Lindell avenue from Channing avenue to Grand avenue.

Connecting Sulphur, Hampton and Billon avenues south of Forest Park by the construction of connecting links through the Mill Creek Valley.

The construction of a bluff drive along the river from Bellevue Park north to Broadway and Nebraska avenue.

Plaza at Union Station.
A provision for the construction of a plaza in front of Union Station was contained in the report, but at the suggestion of a member it was eliminated from the report and submitted to a committee of architects composed of members of the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The architects will be asked to submit their opinion of the plan within a month, so that it can be placed before the Board of Public Service for approval. The plan contemplates the condemnation of two city blocks in front of Union Station and the laying out of a park.

The commission adopted a lengthy report of the Committee on Streets, Parks and Transit in which was outlined the recreational needs of the city.

There is immediate need for 19 additional playgrounds for white children, and four additional ones for negro children, the report says.

Twenty-four new neighborhood parks are needed, and at least 12 new community centers should be built. One new large park or several small parks with recreation fields should be established in the central and south central sections of the city, and 12 new public baths should be constructed.

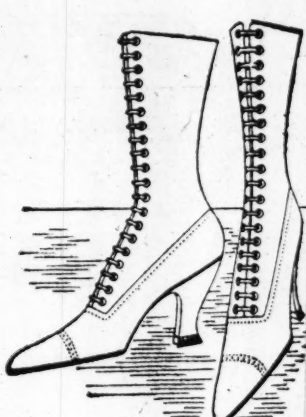

Municipal Auditorium Urged.
More opportunity should be given the children of the city, the report points out, to participate in indoor sports, such as athletic meets, calisthenics, basket ball, community singing and pageants. This could be adequately provided, the commission finds, by the construction of a municipal auditorium.

Additional funds needed for the new recreation facilities, the report continues, should be raised from the sale of bonds and not derived from local revenue. It is suggested that the duplication of community center work should be overcome by closer co-operation between the various agencies of work. New laws should be passed so that a system of boulevards and reservations could be established in the suburban territory.

A scheme for the grouping of all public buildings with the city hall, Municipal Courts Building and Public Library as a basis, was suggested to the commission by the Streets Committee and referred to the same committee of architects that will consider the street changes. It includes the connection by a park of the city hall with the Public Library, and the grouping of all Federal, state and city buildings in the blocks between Twelfth, Eighteenth, Market and Olive streets.

Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert, a member of the commission, reported that work on the widening of Washington avenue from Jefferson avenue to Grand avenue will begin in four or five months. A cut-off connecting at an angle, Washington avenue east with Washington avenue west at Grand avenue will be built in the spring.

"THE PIPES OF PAN"
SKILLFUL NEW COMEDY

Edward Childs Carpenter Has Avoided Saccharine Excess of Former Work.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Edward Childs Carpenter's comedy, "The Pipes of Pan," won a quite unexpected and, on the whole, well-merited success last night at the Hudson Theater, where it was performed for the first time. One says unexpected because the author's temptation to weave little tales of cloying sentiment, as in "The Cinderella Man," sometimes interferes with his better judgment, and the title of his new piece aroused a suspicion that he would be similarly tempted again.

But nothing of the kind occurred. Though "The Pipes of Pan" is spun out of fancies, the saccharine flavor of his preceding play is avoided. There are incidents in it—whole episodes, in fact—which strain credulity to the point of turning the story into a sort of fairy tale in a modern setting, but the invention is fresh, the atmosphere is thoroughly wholesome, the dialogue is exceptionally well written and the essential characters are well sketched. These merits, together with the competent acting of Norman Trevor and Janet Beecher, who are well assisted, combine to assure an evening of real enjoyment to all who care to harken to "The Pipes of Pan."

The scene is laid in the New York studio of a successful portrait painter in middle life—a widower, who is losing his inspiration because of the commercial tyranny of his business-like daughter, and the absence from his life of the great love he experienced when he was a poor student in Paris.

Old Romance Revived.
When he least expects it, Valentine, the volatile, fascinating red-haired girl, whose memory he treasures, suddenly comes back into his life. She is married to a good, matter-of-fact business man, and she is the mother of a son of 17 years, but to the artist she is just as she was before. She entices him to a masked ball, a frivolous but harmless affair—and returns next morning with him to his studio, where her presence and the talk of the old days renew his energies and restore his ambitions. Of course, their escapade is misunderstood by the husband, who arrives unexpectedly. The worst suspicions, as they might well be, are awakened, but all is smoothed out by the son, whose confidence in his mother is steadfast, and who comes to take her home in his new motor car.

These enlargements are, to be sure, rather difficult to accept on faith. There is something doubtful about the mother of a grown son listening to the Pipes of Pan in platonic security with the sweetheart of years gone by. The husband's suspicions are almost justified, and so are the open charges made by his less understanding brother. But at these danger spots the romantic atmosphere is so well contrived that the interest and effect of the story did not greatly suffer.

Norman Trevor's skillful performance of the role of the painter also aids the play's plausibility, and Janet Beecher manages to keep the character of Valentine sympathetic. Amusing and interesting cross-currents are provided by other roles acted by Rita Starnwood, Henry Travers, Arthur King and Buford Hamden.

WOMAN WHO KILLED ROOMER
AT HER HOME IS ACQUITTED

Jury Out an Hour in Case of Miss Emma Jenkinson, 41, Who Shot Eugene Clark.

Miss Emma Jenkinson, 41 years old, of 3530 Lucas avenue, charged with murder in the first degree for the killing at her home on July 26 of Eugene Clark, 33 years old, a roomer, was acquitted last night by a jury in Judge Davis' court after it had been out about an hour.

The only witness to the killing were those who testified for the defense. Their testimony was virtually the same as that given by the defendant, who said that Clark had been drinking the day of the shooting and that he came home about 3:30 p. m. and demanded money from her.

She testified that she refused to give him any money, and that he left the house, returning later and threatening to kill her. He was drunk, she said, and broke the glass in the front door. She became frightened and fearing he would carry out his threat, she fired three shots at him, one lodging in his neck and severing the spinal cord, killing him almost instantly.

CORONER ORDERS DOCTOR'S ARREST AFTER GIRL DIES

The arrest of a physician, whose name was not made public, was ordered by Coroner Vitt following the death of Miss Lorraine Brockman, 21 years old, of Mount Olive, Ill., early today at the Colonial Hotel, 809 North Grand avenue, from the effects of an illegal operation.

The information upon which the coroner acted was given by Leo W. Lungwitz, of 4214A Westminster place, a traveling salesman, who said he and the girl had been living at the Colonial Hotel as Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Currie since a week ago. Lungwitz said he became acquainted with Miss Brockman in Mount Olive when he was there on business and that when she came here she asked him to help her. He denied any responsibility in the case. He was ordered to appear as a witness at an inquest tomorrow.

125 KILLED IN RAID ON TRAIN BY VILLA BAND

Engine and Two Cars Blown Up, Guards Executed and Passengers Robbed, Even of Clothing.

JUAREZ, Mex., Nov. 7.—With stained floors and shattered windows, the Mexican Central passenger train which was attacked by Villa followers, at Armerider station Sunday, arrived here last night. One hundred and twenty-five soldiers and passengers were killed on the train. The passengers were still so badly frightened they could only tell disconnected stories of what occurred Sunday morning on the desert 50 miles south of Chihuahua City. The locomotive and two cars of the train were wrecked by the dynamite which had been placed on the track. The 60 train guards from the Federal garrison at Torreon were either killed during the attack or executed, soon afterward. Every one on the train was robbed and made to disrobe, even the clothing of the women and children having been taken by Villa forces for their camp followers.

$100,000 and Messenger Missing.
The messenger for a large American company in Mexico is missing and the $100,000 worth of silver bullion which he was bringing to the border is also missing. The express messenger was killed, as was the train conductor and other railroad employees, the engine crew losing their lives when the engine was blown up.

Villa's men fired volley after volley into the train, and killed many of the guards and passengers. Then they went through the coaches robbing the passengers, killing many of the men and ordering others outside 50 miles south of Chihuahua City. The remaining passengers were robbed of everything they possessed, even to the last cent of the poor peons. They were then ordered to disrobe and, when two women refused, they were shot and seriously wounded. All were left on the desert over night without clothing. One Mexican family from Nijohacan, including a husband, wife and two small children, had to beg clothing in Chihuahua City.

Says Villa Was Near.
The passengers agreed that Julio Acosta and Martin Lopez commanded the Villa followers, but the Major in command of the train escort, who was wounded and left for dead, heard the commanders say Villa was nearby. The Villa command left for the mountains after robbing the train.

There were no Americans on the train.

SCHOOL GIRLS' KNITTING CLUB

Ben Blewett Pupils to Make Garments for Soldiers.

The eighth grade girls of the Ben Blewett Junior High School have organized a knitting club to knit garments for soldiers as a part of the school's patriotic war work. The boys have formed an organization to collect newspapers and magazines to send to the troops in France.

During the recent Liberty Loan campaign the students of the school sold $545,850 worth of bonds. The Boy Scout members of the school sold $166,600 worth of the total.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

TO JAMES W. GALLAGHER—Your letter published in the Post-Dispatch last Saturday, complaining that you could not get work because you are subject to the draft, has brought an offer of employment. Please call at this office for particulars. Editor, Post-Dispatch.

Glimpse at Employment Conditions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am an every-day reader of your paper, which is never afraid to expose corruption. This being my first letter, I hope you will grant me space in your paper.

The congressional investigation of East St. Louis has proven that the riot was caused by the large importation of men; that the real estate agents made more money renting shacks to negroes than to white people, and that more jobs were advertised than there were jobs. Let us see what we have in St. Louis.

In your paper of last Saturday a letter by a man in the draft age stated that it was hard for him to find employment and that at some places which had advertised for help he was told that none was needed. Let me state some of my experiences: "25 men wanted," one man was hired; "10 men wanted," none hired; "all kinds of help wanted," one hired. By another firm having a standing ad in most of the papers none was hired.

By a firm having Government contracts and running an almost daily ad one man was hired. In no cases were any questions asked as to previous employment, there always being present from five to 12 men.

In the same paper we read that there are few vacant houses in St. Louis, due to the influx of people from the surrounding country, and that the real estate agents are charging more rent. We have here the same conditions that brought on the East St. Louis trouble in July, the only difference being the East Side manufacturers advertised through labor agencies and posters and the St. Louis manufacturers are using the daily press and violating the United States postal laws every day of the week. The papers are not to be blamed, because they suppose the want ads are genuine.

If all the "help wanted" signs seen in front of the Market street labor agencies are as represented, why are they not listed with the United States employment office? WILLIAM JONES.

Passenger Shelter Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I, being a resident of Southwest St. Louis, find cause to make a complaint against the United Railways Co., to-wit: At the western end of the Tower Grove line is a shed for employees only and passengers, while waiting for car, must remain out in any sort of weather. I respectfully suggest the railways company build a shelter of some sort which I believe is due their patrons.

"GRATUIT STATION."

Liberty Bonds as Christmas Gifts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Upon reading Secretary McAdoo's statement in this afternoon's paper in which he urges upon all citizens to buy Liberty Bonds for Christmas presents, the thought occurred to me that this idea might be further developed to the end that the Liberty Loan may be largely oversubscribed. The thought I have in mind is this: That inasmuch as all banks, railroads and other public utilities and industrial organizations generally distribute a bonus to all of their employees at Christmas time and as such organizations will doubtless do the same during this Christmas, it would greatly help toward insuring an oversubscription if all such firms and corporations who contemplate distributing such a bonus this year, do so with the Liberty Bonds instead of with cash as is customary.

It is quite probable, of course, that many banks and other firms who have purchased large amounts of both the first and second Liberty Bonds intend to make just such use of their bonds as above suggested, but it is equally probable that there are many others to whom this thought may not have occurred and who would gladly make such arrangements if it were brought to their attention in time.

If you think that this thought has any merit and that it would better serve the desired purpose if submitted through other channels than the columns of a newspaper you may feel at perfect liberty to transmit it to the proper officials; and in that event I will ask that you kindly refrain from publishing this letter.

H. BORTIN.

MUNICIPAL BRIDGE USES.

We indulge the hope that attacks upon the Post-Dispatch's suggestion that the municipal bridge be utilized to increase the transportation facilities and to gain substantial advantages for St. Louis will not deter the municipal authorities and the railroad managers from earnestly considering a mutually beneficial arrangement.

The bridge and terminal situation in St. Louis has completely changed since the Post-Dispatch won its campaign to smash the terminal monopoly and abolish its bridge tolls. The monopoly has been smashed and its former toll system changed into a St. Louis rate, with a terminal charge included, which has been approved as reasonable and proper by the Interstate Commerce Commission, after a full hearing of the case. Those who are still thinking of the local terminal conditions in terms of monopoly are several years behind in their thinking.

When the Post-Dispatch began its quarter-century fight against the bridge and terminal monopoly and its tolls, St. Louis was in the grip of a strangling combine. This city was not on the railroad map. There was no St. Louis bill of lading nor West Side deliveries by the railroads. All freight and passenger traffic terminated in East St. Louis and tolls separate from and in addition to the rate were charged for crossing the bridge. Freight deliveries to and from the East were made largely by wagons. Not a pound of freight nor a passenger was transported across the bridge without tolls.

We fought the railroads to their knees until they agreed to put St. Louis on the railroad map, issue St. Louis bills of lading and deliver St. Louis freight in St. Louis. They agreed to abolish all bridge charges outside of the 100-mile zone. Mayor Wells' Terminal Commission, created and organized to treat with the roads at the suggestion of the Post-Dispatch, conceded the privilege of an arbitrary charge within the 100-mile zone for bridge and terminal service.

Holding that this charge of 20 cents a ton was excessive and discriminatory, the Post-Dispatch tried to compel the railroads to abolish it. We defeated the Ranken tract bills for the purpose, but failed.

We then induced the Federal Department of Justice to prosecute the bridge and terminal monopoly. The United States Supreme Court smashed the monopoly, opening the bridges and terminals to all railroads on equal terms and eliminating exclusive monopoly contracts. The court, however, failed definitely to abolish the arbitrary charge within the 100-mile zone and refused to pass upon that question, referring it as a rate question to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The free bridge was originally planned to smash the bridge monopoly. Its main purpose was accomplished before it was completed.

As a last resort, attorneys for the Post-Dispatch and for the Business Men's League took the case of the 100-mile zone charges to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which ruled in favor of the railroads. The commission approved the charge as a reasonable local rate for bridge and terminal service into St. Louis.

Every legal process and fighting resource up to date has been exhausted in the effort to compel the abolition of the charge for St. Louis terminal service.

The Post-Dispatch would be glad to have the charge abolished or even reduced. We believe at the least it is excessive and discriminatory. It can be abolished or reduced by the voluntary action of the railroads, by railroad competition which is now free from monopoly control or by a new ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The charge is no longer a separate bridge toll, but is a part of the St. Louis rate, and rates differ from fixed monopoly tolls—they may be changed at any time. We believe this rate will be changed or abolished in time.

Now the question is, can we compel the Interstate Commerce Commission to change its ruling by fighting and hampering the St. Louis railroads? Can we compel the St. Louis railroads to abolish this legally approved charge by fighting them, restricting their terminal facilities or otherwise hampering them in their St. Louis service, the free bridge in the meantime remaining unused? Under the new conditions, would it be wise or reasonable to restrict or hamper railroad service and thus restrict and congest railroad traffic in or through St. Louis, especially in war conditions, when instead of restricting or diminishing railroad facilities we should expand and increase them to the uttermost?

As to tolls on the municipal bridge, we hold now, as we have held, that it should be a toll-free bridge. We mean by this statement that the expense to the railroads of using the bridge should never be charged as a separate toll for freight or passengers, but should be absorbed by the railroads in the rate to St. Louis. No toll should ever be charged pedestrians or vehicles for the use of the bridge.

The necessity for savage warfare with a strangling monopoly has passed. We must now deal with the railroads reasonably by argument or by well-grounded appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission for justice.

The municipal authorities should endeavor to use the bridge to obtain fair rates for St. Louis. They should use it to gain advantages for St. Louis in increased railroad facilities. If they succeed in so using it as to gain in the East Bridge another free highway in the center of the city between St. Louis and East St. Louis, an underground loop for interurban traffic and the beginning of a subway, the bridge will justify its cost.

We earnestly repeat our suggestion that the municipal authorities work along these lines to utilize the city's bridge. To let it stand idle in war on account of ancient prejudice, when it might be used beneficially, would make it a damning monument to St. Louis' sloth and incompetence.

PEACE IN THE PACIFIC.

The notes interchanged by the United States and Japanese Governments put into official language certain assurances given unofficially by Viscount Ishii in speeches while in this country. The understandings reached cannot have the force of a treaty unless ratified by the Senate, but the text embodies definitions and pledges whose nonobservance in the future relations of the two countries would involve bad faith.

The most important clauses recognize Japan's so-called Monroe Doctrine applied to China, by accepting Japanese claims of special interests in that country akin to ours in nearby foreign territory, disavow any intention on the part of either country to infringe the independence and integrity of China and reaffirm adherence to the open-door principle.

In judging of the force of the so-called agreements entered into by the notes we may remember that the original promulgation of the open-door principle was made by Secretary John Hay in a similar note. Our own Monroe Doctrine never had legislative sanction or the support of any formal treaty stipulations and still no principle affecting international relations has had greater validity and authority or has been subject to less question during the last hundred years.

We are better prepared now than we have been in the past to appreciate how great a triumph over impudent German intrigue and meddling is represented in the mutual assurance of the notes. With these causes of friction adjusted, what other questions can menace the future of the Pacific as a truly peaceful ocean?

TAMMANY GETS THE SPOILS.

After a terrible uproar in New York about patriotism and the war Tammany captured the New York spoils and its candidate, Judge Hylan, declares he is a red-hot American and wants the war fought to a finish.

After all weren't the spoils the big issue with all the candidates, the parties and the factions? Hillquit, who was sweeping New York before the election, got about 135,000 votes out of a total of about 700,000. That number of votes about covers the ignorance anarchy and alienism of New York's polyglot population.

ROOSEVELT MUST CONVICT WILSON.

From Mr. Roosevelt's latest fulmination Americans will learn that President Wilson was responsible for the McLemore resolution, by which it was proposed that Congress, in obedience to the Kaiser's demand, should surrender the rights of the United States on the sea. Little by little the Colonel is passing final judgment on all things, and the culprit in every case is the same.

In the course of time, no doubt, we shall hear from Sagamore Hill that it was Mr. Wilson who wrote the ultimatum to Serbia, and a little later we shall be told that it was President Wilson who led the German armies into Belgium. If the war lasts another year we may also get evidence that the President bombarded the Rheims cathedral and commanded the U-boat that sank the Lusitania.

When Mr. Roosevelt sets out to prove that he would have been a better man in another man's place, his shrinking modesty always impels him to make a good job of it. Possessing only the fallible gift of foresight, Mr. Wilson has incurred the displeasure of omnipotent hindsight. As he is bound to be convicted, he may as well confess first as last.

Overeating is bad for your system and bad for your country at this time. Don't waste food. Help yourself and America.

THE LAW'S DELAY.

The news that after 15 years of litigation the New York courts have at last disposed of suits growing out of a fireworks explosion at Madison Square Garden has a curious effect upon the general reader. It awakes in his memory a whole list of names—Rick Carstone, Ada Clare, Conversation Kenne, Mr. Wholes, the whole personnel of the celebrated case of Jarndyce and Jarndyce, as fully set out in Mr. Charles Dickens' "Bleak House."

It has been a long time since "Bleak House" pilloried the law's delays to the scorn of a whole world and one would think that in modern America, and particularly in modern New York, whose tribunals are held up as models to be admired by all the rest of the country, that this ancient disgrace were as dead as Mr. Tulliver himself, with the pictured finger of Allegory pointing down at the spot where he lay.

Fifteen years ago 18 persons were killed and 60 others were injured, and yet the law is only now able to deal out justice! Fifteen years of motions and pleas and rejoinders and judgments and appeals and rehearings and—costs! Some of the boys who were in knickerbockers when the great accident happened were voters and judges and clerks in Tuesday's New York election.

One hopes there were no poor, half-crazed Miss Flites hovering around the courtroom in the closing days or no angry, badgered men from Shropshire breaking their hearts in the hopelessness of it all. One hopes, too, that something has been left to the litigants after the expenses and fees and commissions have been paid. It is too much, of course, to hope that anything will be done about it—anything to expedite cases in the future and make such delays impossible. After all, however, the law did get this matter straightened out. Wherefore, perhaps, we ought to chorus in the deep, resonant tones of a million Mr. Chadbands: "O, let us be joyful, joyful! O, let us be joyful!"

THE SPECTRAL MELODY TO

NOTE: This is the poem referred to in Mr. Voelker's letter of yesterday, thought possibly to have been written by Poe for the Southern Literary Messenger. As Mr. Voelker explained, the clipping, which had been found in St. Louis, bore the initials E. P., though Poe usually, when using his initials, signed himself E. A. P. However, he frequently did contribute to the Southern Literary Messenger, which makes the authorship of the poem which follows interesting:

There's a melody I heard
Not long ago,
And my heart it deeply stirred—
It touched me so!
And it haunts me while I wake.
For its spell I cannot break,
For its notes are filled with sadness
And with woe.

For I feel a mighty thrill
With its deep tones.
They recall to me that pit
Of cries and groans,
Where I languished through the years,
Filled with hopelessness and tears,
Where the deathlike murk and dampness
Chilled my bones.

As that melody comes crowding
On my brain,
"Is there no escape," I cry; but
All in vain.
For it threatens me with death.
Like a dragon's poison breath,
And my life-blood, slow and taunting,
It does drain.

"Fear for me no more, O good and Kindly friend,
Cease those efforts, pray, on me no
Thought expend,
For the fiend, through music's aid,
Sucks the flame, the light does fade—
When you read this to their work the Ghouls will bend.

"E. P."

It would be interesting to know what Julius Caesar's r. p. m. is about now. (Diagram: Meaning the number of times a minute he is turning in his grave.)

THE OPIUM EATERS.

Far, far away is the land of dreams
By a mystic, murmuring river
That softly laps the lazy shores
Where the poppies stir and quiver.

Here are the sleeping souls of those Who yield to the poppies' sway;
Their spirits enchanted among the flowers,
They dream their lives away.

DORIS MCKENZIE.

SAVING THE APOSTROPHE.

IT is no secret among readers of Just a Minute that we have a much more serious purpose in calling attention to misplaced apostrophes than merely to create amusement. Indeed, our real object is to save the apostrophe to punctuation. Misuse of it must very soon cause it to fall into disrepute, and from that on the end would come quickly. When the municipality itself joins in this abuse of the apostrophe, as our own municipality did some time ago at Forest Park, when it displayed the sign "This Way to the Municipal Greenhouse's," it is time someone who loves the king's English and wants to preserve it took up a cudgel in defense of one of its indispensable tools. Without the apostrophe it would be impossible for us to express those shades of meaning which make the possessive, for one thing, always plain, instead of leaving one in doubt, as the saloon sign seen from the Olive car, "Guss' Place," certainly does. One of our readers writes us this morning commending us for our defense of the apostrophe, and we feel sure of the moral support of thousands. It is something to have the sanction of the municipality, for instance, lest to what has become a widespread movement to discredit this excellent mark of punctuation, and we are not blind to it. Rally around us, all ye that the English language love! Let us save the mark.

After all, the wet and dry fight on the constitutional question is the real tug-of-war in this country. Iowa has just had a draw fight, and it looks as if Ohio has had one. New Mexico, where the saloons are so far apart they don't do any good, is an exception. It votes dry.

The women have taken New York, and the suffrage fight is all over except for the shouting and rounding up a few places out in the sticks, like Missouri.

The announcement that finger prints may be made of babies born at the city hall is a little alarming. Can't they be made of something else?

The harp that hung mute in Tammany Hall for four years is making music again.

The apostrophe peril has broken out again, this time on South Broadway:

Whiskey Barrel's For Sale

KANSAS CITY.

From the Kansas City Star.
ON the square, isn't Kansas City a city of boobs?

Let it sink in. A city of boobs. We blow a lot about our superior enterprise and intelligence. But we are kidding ourselves. We are just plain boobs!

We let the electric company turn off the power on us for an hour or two every evening. There are plenty of electric signs going. But the city administration doesn't see anything it can do about it. So we patiently light our homes by candles and tell manufacturers who want to use electric power to go to some other city, Kansas City, Kan., or St. Louis or Cleveland, where they can get power. Incidentally, we have permitted the private electric light company to charge us half as much again for service as the people on the Kansas side pay their municipal plant.

Boobs! That's what we are. For years we have been fussing along without gas. We have eaten cold breakfasts and dinners, done our washing in cold water, risked holdups on unlighted streets, hung lanterns on gas posts, and blown up our houses from explosions of gas that had gone out and then come on. Today we are paying double our contract price for gas and not getting any. And as a city we are doing nothing to help ourselves.

We let the street railway get away with a 30-year franchise. Then we wait at the crossing for two or three cars to go by until one comes that we can squeeze into. Oh, yes, the company is making improvements, to be sure. It has installed some natty little boxes on the cars for us to drop our nickels into. That surely ought to satisfy us.

Once more, boobs! We don't know whether we are going to have any coal to heat our houses with, and we aren't particularly disturbed about it. We go without medical inspection of our schools. We see the chance for an interurban station go glimmering through a veto by the Mayor.

Oh, we are a fine, up-to-date city, we are. Bursting with push and enterprise. And we can't even handle the simple, everyday matters of cooking and lighting and transportation!

Boobs! That's all!

American Soldiers Abroad.

From the London Morning Post.
THE first and most striking point is the splendid physical appearance of the men and the obvious robustness of their constitution. Physically they are perfectly trained, and they are acquiring their military knowledge with a speed that delights and astounds their officers and critics. They show no signs whatever of staidness, but a constant good humor that has been proof against the discomfort of rain, mud and improvised quarters. Their discipline is free and easy, except when actual work is concerned, and at work they obey instantly and intelligently the order given them. Throughout all ranks there is an eagerness to proceed instantly to the front, and the men's own view that they are perfectly prepared to go into battle today, if it is a fault, is a fault on the right side. Throughout the visit I was greatly struck by the modesty of officers of all ranks. Their attitude to the war here is that they have come to learn the art of warfare as it is fought in modern conditions in Europe, and they are determined that it will be neither their fault nor the fault of their men if they do not give a good account of themselves.

How Our Allies Save Food.

VERNON KELLOGG in the Atlantic Monthly.
AMERICANS who are asked to limit their consumption of bread, meat and sugar for the sake of supplying our Allies with food will want to know what the Allies themselves are doing in the way of food-economy. That each of them has a governmental food-administration has already been said. On the heels of this it may be added at once that these administrations are vigorous ones and their action drastic. They undertake something that will not be undertaken here. They practically put the people of their countries on rations. * * * England's use of bread has been reduced 25 per cent, according to an August estimate of the Food Controller; in some cities—York, for example—it is greater. France has reduced (August) her use of meat 17 per cent since March of this year. Marked additions to the acreage of grain and potatoes have been made. England estimates an addition of 100,000 acres of wheat and potatoes for this year. * * * Over one hundred thousand women are now in regular agricultural employment in localities where before the war no women at all were employed. The Government has placed several thousand motor-tractors at the service of the farmers. In a word, our Allies are not asking us for food without making the most strenuous efforts to help themselves.

The Post-Dispatch
Daily Short StoryIN THE MOON OF FALLING BLOSSOMS

By A. Maria Crawford.

HERE was the mellow fragrance of late autumn in the air when Dave Thornton turned his run-out from the white road of the valley to climb Roan Mountain to the stone lodge he had visited every year for five years.

He was going back against his will and better judgment. Five years before he had built the little white lodge and furnished it out of his store treasures, picked up on his travels over the years. They had planned to spend their honeymoon there—he and Caroline Maynard. But Fate, in person of another man, had intervened and Carolyn had jilted him and married a young Ambassador who had taken her abroad immediately. He had pined open the old wound every year by going back and living again his old love affair. Now he was going back to pack up a few things, for he had planned to sell the place to Edmee Boynton, a young girl who was beginning to sell short stories to the magazines. He had met her at a little studio tea and had come to like her well enough in a few weeks that followed to agree to sell her his little house of dreams, his dreams that had never come true for him. She was coming up the next day to look it over.

When Dave was half a mile away he looked up and saw the lodge like a white flower opening out of a green calyx. Smoke curled lazily from a chimney. Evidently the old caretaker was ready for him.

As he stepped on the rustic porch he saw a merry little fire of black logs crackling on the old brass andirons that had been his mother's. A rough basket of wild flowers hung outside the door. Within gay pillows lay a festive air to his worn old rather couch and he saw a ukulele propped carelessly in the corner. A Chinese tea set that he had picked up in Canton was on a wagonette and little blue flame burned cheerily in the kettle. He stood in the doorway, a little amazed, wondering if his eyes did not deceive him. Many times he had pictured the little house as that, warm and intimate and cozy.

"Possession," said Edmee Boynton, dressed in a dull blue smock at half past five, half revealed the eyes of her young body as she came to meet him. "Is nine points of a law. Mother and I have moved. Truthfully, we are stopping at the hotel on top of the mountain. I could not resist running down and getting things all homelike for you. Like it?" she asked, smiling at his expression.

"So much that I can't think of leaving the place now."

Suddenly a little pulse in his throat began to hammer with persistence. He wanted to take her in his arms and kiss her where a shining black hair waved back from her high white forehead.

He always felt that she attracted him powerfully. In a burned child reads the fire, and having been told by one woman had made him wary of the sex. Seeing Edmee Boynton against the background of a little house of dreams that had poured into a real home under his agile touch and his fingers made him realize that he had fallen in love again, hopelessly, happily in with the little story writer. He believed that romance had died of the world for him, but love is born in the motion of falling blossoms as well as in the springtime life.

"Are you going to make me sorry if I came? It will be such a disappointment not to stay here!" she turned away, her lips quivering.

"Do you think that you can write stories, love stories up here?"

She smiled then and looked up at him. "There is one disease that people never acknowledge," she told him. "Writers never admit that they can't write anything they attempt to produce. The disease is fatal. One never recovers. Won't you have some tea," she asked hospitably. "In your own house?"

He turned and took both her fluttering little hands in his own, and half the house and—and all mine!" he answered. He drew her to his arms and at the touch of her elderly young body, all the old doubts and misgivings disappeared and he had ever known, flooded his heart. He had taken his cold, empty little house and opened the windows to the sunshine of love, filling with dreams, rosy dreams, the dreams that must inevitably come. "I love you," he whispered passionately. "I love you, dear."

Outside a bird called, a tender mating note, and the answer a soft and sweet, from a coned heart.

There were steps on the porch through the door came a vision. Dave thought could not be real. Olve Maynard, in the pale gray widowhood, was smiling at him, went forward to meet her, his heart all the while writing.

Even as he greeted her, this man who had once thrilled him, wondered how her coming would affect him, but his pulse, save when looked at the wondering Edmee, was just as steady as usual. He had been waiting for her, for any acquaintance, he was conscious that Carolyn looked rather a trifle blue, and her complexion was made up too much for beauty. He found himself critically appraising her to the sincere, naturally beautiful little creature who had been his heart.

The eternal triangle! exclaimed now when they were alone. "I thought that I will write a love story about you," she told him. And how will you end it, little

Composite View of the Mother Spirit in War Time

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch by Marguerite Martyn

By Marguerite Martyn.

WHEN you have been passing the corner of Tenth and Locust streets and observed through the wide expanse of windows of the Red Cross sewing branch, that busy, buzzing, humming swarm of women stitching, stitching, do you ever have the fleeting impression that you have gazed upon a visible incarnation of the mother spirit of the land in war time?

Two broad sides of the immense room are glass, affording an unobstructed view. All through the long summer days when many other war reliefs languished, this workroom has not seemed to lack workers. I know that according to the system of organization the same women do not sew here except at intervals of days or weeks and yet as I have passed here day after day there remains the composite impression of just one type of face bending over her work.

It is a mother face. The kind of mother who no longer fibs about her age, who isn't ashamed to let the gray hairs and other forerunners of age crop out, but who rather asseveratesly wants you to know that she is old enough at least to have a son in the army. Sometimes she is proud mother with courage enough for all. Sometimes she is an anxious, silent mother. But always she is a busy mother, her fingers flying over the coarse muslin and homely outing flannel garments she is working on. You have the impression that she is accustomed to working like this habitually; that she has had to interrupt the routine of her home work in order to work here for the day; that she has left the family's dinner steaming in the fireless cooker, the front door key under the mat for the school children, and expects to rush home and see that the fires are burning and the lights glowing to welcome her homesick menfolk.

She hasn't much time for thinking sad thoughts about the war and she must not yield to melancholy, for if she does, all those who depend upon her for consolation will sit down and weep also. And that would never do.

I fancy that while she sits and sews for the soldiers she permits herself her rarest and most reckless indulgence in thoughts about her absent soldier boy. And when not about her own, about the other mother's son who will wear this garment she is sewing on. Sewing is conducive to thought as well as to conversation. Only women know how much this is so.

Oh the tender, the brave, the ever faithful mother thoughts that are sewn into those seams. If they could but crystallize, wouldn't they be enough to keep our boys from harm and overthrow the evil we all are struggling against?

However, it is work and effort that count most when we are battling brute force.

The most indifferent passer-by has not failed to be impressed with this example of faithfulness to a volunteer task, unwavering and unending during several changes of seasons now.

It seems to me that looking through those glass windows is as if one were looking through a diminishing glass at the whole mother spirit of the land visualized therein.

What the Doctor Would Do.

A DOCTOR was running for office and a speaker was singing his praises at a mass meeting of the town's fellow citizens in his own town, and eloquently the speaker cried out:

"Suppose one of your wives should become seriously ill in the night—what would be the first thing you would do? Why, naturally, you would send for our good friend here, Dr. ———. And what would he do?"

Why, no matter how dark the night nor how stormy nor how rough the way, our sacrificing doctor would hitch up his horse and travel through the darkness and the storm to the bedside of your wife. And what would be the first thing he would do?"

Here the speaker, who proposed to follow his own advice by saying that the doctor would save the wife's life, paused for rhetorical effect and repeated: "Yes, friends, I ask what would be the first thing he would do?"

At that, a tall, raw-boned, angular man, sitting at the back of the hall, cried out: "Charge a hundred dollars, worse luck!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

More Scotch Thrift.

HARRY LAUDER tells the following story about a funeral in Glasgow and a well-dressed stranger who took a seat in one of the mourning coaches. The other three occupants of the carriage were rather curious to know who he was, and at last one of them began to question him. The dialogue went like this:

"You'll be a brother of the corp?"

"No, I'm no brother of the corp."

"Weel, ye'll be his cousin?"

"No, I'm no cousin."

"At any rate ye'll be a friend of the corp?"

"No, I'm no friend of the corp. I've no been very well mazel."

The stranger explained complacently, "my doctor has ordered me carriage exercise, so I thought this would be the cheapest way to take it."

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TONIGHT

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Freda and the Ogress.

POOR little Freda was an orphan; her mother died when she was a very little girl, and her father married a woman who was not nice to Freda, and who had won daughters of her own.

After a while Freda's father died, and that left poor Freda without anyone to care for her, and her stepmother did not want her around, as it made one more mouth to feed.

One night the stepmother and her daughters planned to get rid of Freda by sending her to an old Ogress they knew of in the forest, for they knew that once the Ogress had her in her power they would never see Freda again.

So that night the step-sisters went to the Ogress and told her they would give her a bag of gold if she would rid them of Freda.

The old Ogress gladly promised, for she loved gold above all else in the world.

The next morning the stepmother and her daughters sat around the breakfast table, each crying or pretending to, as if their very hearts were broken.

"What is the matter?" asked poor, unsuspecting little Freda.

"Oh," we feel so unhappy that we must part from you," said the stepmother.

"Yes," said the sisters. "We are so poor that we must all go out in the world and earn our living. We no longer can live here."

Freda, thinking they were telling the truth, began to pack her few belongings, and after breakfast set out, accompanied by her two stepsisters, but when they came to the forest they told Freda they would take another road, as they were sure it would be easier for them to find work if they went in separate directions.

Of course the two stepsisters ran home as soon as they were out of Freda's sight and their mother made them a nice dinner, over which they laughed and talked of their good luck in getting rid of Freda, for Freda's father had left gold enough to care for all of them as long as they lived, but the bad stepmother and stepsisters wanted it all for themselves.

Freda, sat by the roadside wondering which way she should go and what would become of her, when she saw coming through the wood an old woman with a big bundle of fagots on her back.

It was the old Ogress coming to carry Freda off to her cave in the forest, but Freda did not know her; she saw only a poor old woman carrying a heavy bundle.

Freda jumped up and ran to the old Ogress. "Oh! let me help you carry that heavy bundle of fagots," she said, taking it from the back of the Ogress.

The old Ogress was so surprised at Freda's kindness that she did not know what to say at first, but remembering her promise to the stepsisters and the bag of gold she had from her, she decided to take it from her part of the bargain.

"Oh! yes, my dear, it is very heavy for my old back to carry, whined the Ogress. "If you will help me to carry it home I will give you a bowl of broth."

The Ogress had intended to give Freda a bowl of broth that would put her to sleep and change her into a wolf or a bear and send her out into the forest to live, but Freda's kindness to her made her hesitate, for no one had ever done the old Ogress a kindness before.

"I'll give it to her tonight," thought the Ogress, and she gave Freda a good bowl of broth that would not harm her.

When Freda had eaten the bowl of broth she began to feel sleepy and wash the dishes. "You must rest, Granny," she told the Ogress. "You walked a long way, and besides you should have someone to care for you in your old age. I wish I could stay here with you, but you are poor, and so am I, and I shall have to go into the world and work."

The old Ogress sat in the doorway of her cave and watched Freda as she worked. Her hard old heart softened toward the girl and she began to question Freda about her stepmother and sisters.

When she heard Freda's story she began to see that the girl had been wronged and that she really was sweet and good instead of lazy and ugly as the sisters had said.

That night while Freda slept the old Ogress crept out of the cave and went to the home of the stepmother and sisters. She opened the shutters of the windows where they were sleeping inside and scattered a powder over them.

When Freda awoke the Ogress told her to go home; that she was sure she would find there was gold enough for her wants if she would look under the bed in her stepmother's room.

The Ogress took her to the path that led from the forest and Freda went back to her home.

The door was open and Freda went in, but there was no one inside; the beds were not made, but nowhere could she find her stepmother or the sisters.

Freda looked under the bed of her stepmother as the Ogress told her, and there she found the gold, bags and bags of it.

But she never saw again her step-sisters or their mother, but every morning when they came three hungry, starved-looking bears who looked longingly at the nice, comfortable home where Freda lived with an old woman, but they dare not go near it.

They are the stepsisters and their mother, for the old Ogress had changed into bears just as they had intended Freda to be, and the old woman who lives with Freda is the Ogress whom the fairies have changed into a good old woman because she asked them to.

Some days when they have been punished enough a kind and good fairy will change them to their own forms again, and then they will live good lives all their days.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon
By Helen Rowland

MY Daughter, consider the life of Man! How beautiful are all his days!

Verily, they are smoother than an electric runabout and easier than a Government position or the solving of a German plot.

For behold, he ariseth in the morning and at his right hand are his towels and his slippers, and at his left hand are his razor and his toothbrush.

He droppeth his garments upon the floor and flingeth his discarded collars to the wind.

His shoes are as birds that fly to the uttermost corners of the house, and his collar button is as the Lost Chord, which must be eternally sought.

Yet why shall HE worry? For his wife starteth early upon the still hunt and lureth all these elusive things from their lair one by one.

And lo, when he is shaven and perfumed and arrayed, he descendeth to find his breakfast awaiting him.

His newspaper lieth at his elbow; his grape-fruit hath been cut AND sugared; his coffee cup runneth over.

And while he eateth and regaleth himself his wife RETURNETH to the hunt.

She findeth his gloves and his hat and his portmanteau and his umbrella. Yea, she crawleth behind furniture and under chairs and couches; she routeth out cupboards and bringeth forth the missing.

AND when he hath departed with much rushing and panting and gnashing of teeth, she goeth into the kitchen and wipe away the tears of the indignant handmaiden and sootheth her wounded feelings.

She gathereth up burnt stumps and sweepeth up ashes. She picketh up his things!

The bureau drawers which he hath torn to pieces are put straight and his hose rescued from the fireplace and his cravat from the talcum powder. His shoes are found and mated and reconciled one to the other.

And behold, as if by a miracle, out of chaos cometh order, and that which resembled Verdun and Flanders becometh as peaceful as Philadelphia upon a rainy evening.

Then doth his Beloved repair to her dressing table and anoint herself with spikenard and myrrh and poudre de riz that she may be beautiful for his coming. She massage away the worry wrinkles and assumeth a radiant smile.

She donneth her prettiest frock and adorneth her hair with flowers. She toucheth a match to the fire and lighteth ALL the lamps.

She goeth into the kitchen and hurryeth the dinner.

And lo, when her lord returneth all is beauty and comfort and sweetness and light.

And as he kisseth her lightly upon the cheek he murmurth: "Ah, how sweet is home, and how pleasant is a woman's life! Yea, what DOST thou do with Thy time all day, Beloved?"

Yet she answereth him not, but is still.

For is it not enough for her that she is the Shock Absorber on the springs of her Beloved's life, and the axle grease upon the wheels of matrimony?

And why shall SHE remind him that the Path of Domesticity is not macadamized, but full of ruts and bumps whereof HE knoweth naught? Selah.

Save Every Bit of Fat in Cooking

MISS LOUISE STANLEY of the University of Missouri makes the following suggestions for eliminating waste in preparation of meats:

Don't waste any of the fat from any kind of meat. It may be clarified and used in place of the more common household fats.

Perhaps there is a fat hen to be cooked. Much of the fat will be lost in the preparation unless proper precautions are taken. If the hen is to be baked remove the excess fat and fry it out as you would any other fat. Add a little water to the pan in which the fowl is roasted to prevent the overcooking of the fat.

If the fowl is boiled, the saving of the fat is easier, for it will form a layer on top which can be removed when the liquid cools. If the fat is not clear it can be clarified by heating with clear water and cooling until the fat can be lifted off as a cake on top again. Any specks of protein can be removed from the bottom of the cake.

Any fats from other meats should be handled in the same way. Drippings should be saved and used for seasoning gravies and vegetables, or they may be clarified and used as any other fat.

Serve with the meat only as much fat as you have found the individuals of the family will eat. The remainder may be fried out. Reserve the highly flavored fats for seasoning where the flavor will not be objectionable and use the clarified fats for general household purposes.

All of these fats may be used in a variety of ways. Chicken fat is considered especially desirable in biscuit and pastry. The harder fats, such as beef, are best used in puddings, softened by the addition of an oil like cottonseed or corn oil, or any softer fat.

JUICE OF LEMONS!
HOW TO MAKE SKIN
CLEAR, SOFT, WHITE

Girls! Prepare this lotion and massage face, neck, arms and hands. It's cheap!

By all means, girls, prepare this lemon lotion to keep your skin flexible and young looking. You will soon realize that true loveliness does not mean the powdery-look or waxen colorlessness of some household flower, but is typified by the velvety softness of your skin, your peach-like complexion and rosy-white hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream you can prepare a full quart of this skin-clearing, full lemon skin bleach, skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoother and beautifier which absorbs readily and is not sticky or greasy.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this skin-clearing, full lemon skin bleach, skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. The Floral Games.

CLEMENCE ISAURE was a lady of Toulouse, France, celebrated for her learning. She instituted the Jeux Floreux, or Floral Games, in that city, when prizes were bestowed on successful poetical competitors. She was born on this date, Nov. 1, 1464.

When still a young girl the romance of her life began. Near her garden dwelt Raoul, a young troubadour, who fell in love with her, and sang songs in which their names were linked.

He repplied with flowers whose meaning Raoul could easily interpret.

He was the son of Count Raymond of Toulouse and followed his father to war against the Emperor Maximilian. Both were killed in the battle of Gulkenaste. Clemence resolved to take the veil. Before doing so, however, she renewed the poetic festival and as prizes distributed among the victors the five different flowers, wrought in gold and silver, with which she had replied to her lover.

The Floral Games were continued for 300 years after her death.

YOU GET BETTER COUGH SYRUP BY MAKING IT AT HOME

What's More, You Save About $2 by It. Easily Made and Costs Little.

You'll never really know what a fine cough syrup you can make until you prepare this famous home-made remedy. You not only save $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a more effective and dependable remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual cough, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents' worth) from any good drug store, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Here you have a full pint—a family supply—of the most effective cough syrup that money can buy—at a cost of only 65 cents or less. It never spoils.

It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Chief Young Decides to Close Future City Club After Last Night's Raid

Experience of Guest at Majestic Hotel Week Ago Sunday Convinces Police Official Organization Is Not a Boxing Club, but a Rendezvous for Crooks, He Says.

THE Future City Athletic Club is doomed. That is the decision of Chief of Police Young as announced this morning, following a raid on the Pine street boxing club last night, in which Tommy Sullivan, president and chief promoter of the organization; Eddie Randall, referee, and Bobby Anderson and Jimmy Reagan, the latter two boxers appearing in the feature bout, were arrested and taken to the Central District Police Station.

The raid was conducted by Sergeant Stinger of the gambling squad, under the supervision of Capt. A. W. Schwartz of the Central District. About a dozen patrolmen and half that number of plain clothes men were working under the direction of these two officers.

The charge lodged against Sullivan was that he was conducting a public sparring exhibition in violation of Section 4681 of the revised Statutes of Missouri. Reagan, Anderson and Randall were booked as participants in the exhibition. After spending about an hour in a cell in the Central District Station, all were released on bonds, returnable Nov. 10 before Judge Krueger.

Had Been Closely Watched.

While Capt. Schwartz stated last night that he had instigated the raid, it became known this morning that the Future City Athletic Club has been under surveillance by Chief of Police Young. Young declares that the Future City club is not an athletic club whose chief interest is the promotion of boxing contests, but a rendezvous for crooks and the chief also claims to be in possession of evidence to the effect that it is a bad club.

The particular incident that attracted the Chief's attention to this phase of the Future City's operations, occurred a week ago last Sunday. Police records show that on this date a guest at the Majestic Hotel, Eleventh and Pine streets, at the suggestion of and in company with a bell hop employed there, went to the Future City Club at 1826 Pine street in company with four others and purchased 20 bottles of beer. Subsequently, so the record shows, the guest was invited to take an automobile ride and during the course of this was robbed of $47. Because he was a stranger in the city, the guest was unable to determine just where the robbery occurred, but reported the affair to the police. The bellhop was arrested and it later developed that he was also employed as an usher at the Future City Athletic Club.

According to the victim's story, a tub of beer was in evidence in a room within the club and was from this tub that he purchased the 20 bottles. Chief Young's decision to put the club out of business followed a perusal of this report.

"Victim of Trickery," Says Sullivan; Raid Believed Knockout for Game Here

In the Central District Station Sullivan stated that he had been made the victim of police trickery. According to him the police obtained admission tickets under false pretenses.

"I advertised the boxing bouts," said Sullivan, "for members only. Naturally, I presumed that all persons purchasing tickets were members of the club. The policemen purchasing tickets were given them on the same theory because I did not know they were not. I will go ahead with my show next Tuesday night. This interruption won't deter me."

Capt. Schwartz made it plain last night that had Sullivan kept within the law and sold tickets only to those who could show membership cards, he would not have been disturbed. Chief of Police Young has time and again stated that so long as local boxing clubs observe and let the law he could not touch them. However, it is believed the Chief will not stop now until he has driven the Future City Club out of business, particularly since the incident of a week ago Sunday has come to his attention.

Raid Quietly Conducted.

The raid was conducted in an orderly manner and entirely without confusion. Reagan and Anderson had concluded the first round and were waiting to their corners, when the dozen patrolmen surrounded the ring and ordered the boxers, their seconds, managers and referee Eddie Randall from the ring.

Meantime, plain clothesmen had entered the box office and taken charge of gloves, tickets, ticket stubs and cash. The boxers were permitted to go to their dressing rooms and don street attire, after which Sullivan, Reagan, Anderson, Randall and Eddie Smith, the latter Sullivan's chief aide, were loaded into a patrol wagon and taken to Central District Station.

May End Game Here.

Close followers of boxing here, which has been in a decidedly unstable state for the past three years, are inclined to the belief that last night marked the end of the game. About two years ago, a commission was organized to take charge of the sport. This commission consisted of Dr. C. M. Westerman, Judge Grahville

Husky Tackle of Billikens, Who Has Been Playing Well This Year

SEVERIN POIRROT.

Poirrot has played right tackle for Coach Radamacher's eleven since the opening of the season. He has been one of the mainstays in the line. He will get a real chance to shine Saturday, when the Blue and White tackles Marquette of Milwaukee here.

Seven Teams Have Not Had Goal Line Crossed to Date

Illinois, Chicago, Georgia Tech and Tulane Have Not Been Counted Upon at All, While Michigan, Alabama and Sewanee Have Had Field Goal Kicked Against Them.

JUST seven teams playing college football throughout the country this season have succeeded in keeping their opponents from crossing their goal line for a touchdown. Of this number four have not been counted upon at all, while the other three have been tallied against via the field goal route.

Three of these, if Michigan is considered as a real contender, are in the fight for the Western Conference championship. The other two being Illinois and Chicago. Both the Illinois and Maroons have played four battles to date, while Michigan has participated in six.

Georgia Tech, leader in the race for the Southern supremacy, and a claimant for national honors, has not been counted upon in four clashes. Tech, on the other hand, has scored 25 points. Tulane, Sewanee and Alabama, also in the South, are the others that have not had their goal line crossed. Sewanee and Alabama played a 3-3 tie last Saturday for only points scored against either.

Navy Leads in Scoring.

The Navy team, this season coached by Gilmore Dobie, who created such a record while at the University of Washington, leads the country in scoring. The Middies have run up a total of 334 in six contests, an average of more than 55 per battle. This exceeds the record of any other eleven.

In the last four contests Dobie's aggregation has scored 147 points. Maryland State, Carlisle, Haverford and Western Reserve, a total of 307 points have been scored, while the quarter of a mile failed to tally at all.

This is quite a record for any old team. That Glenn Warner "tank" Pittsburgh, has scored 142 points in six battles, against six for the opposition. This is an average of 23 per game. Pittsburgh is already conceded the championship of the East.

McKinley Tops Local Teams.

McKinley High School, rated the best in the Interscholastic League, today gave Paul Moore a bad beating in today's round bout here last night. The bout went the limit, but it might not have, had Patsey Haley, the referee, taken a hand. In the sixth round Moore, who had been taking a licking from the first tap of the gong, dropped his hands and decided to call it a day, but the referee told him that the crowd had paid the good money and that they were entitled to get their money's worth even at the expense of his skin.

Moore decided to continue and to the surprise of the crowd made a better showing after his lecture than the bout. Moore was decidedly one-sided with Dundee forcing the fighting all the way. Dundee dropped Moore for the count of five in the fourth period.

BONACCI WILL GET CHANCE AT AN END POSITION SATURDAY

Lack of Competent Wing Men Forces Billiken Coach to Shift Tackle Around.

MANY HAVE BEEN TRIED

Weiss, Finnegan, Gleeson and Moriarity Have Had Opportunity to Star This Season.

Coach Charles M. Radamacher of St. Louis University is up in arms once more. And it is the same old trouble—lack of competent ends. It has been this way all season and now it looks as the only way to develop good wing men is by continuing to experiment. It is the end problem more than anything else that has contributed to the early season failures of the Billikens.

When the new coach arrived here he heard that the flanks would be well protected by Gleeson, Galligan, Gleeson and Kennedy. He has only seen two of these men, Gleeson, who reported after about a month of practice, and Kennedy.

However he did understand that as soon as St. Louis U. does develop a pair of ends, the blue and white will appear as one of the strongest teams that has represented a St. Louis U. eleven in many seasons.

Would Have Heavy Team.

Consider Gleeson and Bonacci as the ultimate winners of the end jobs. Poirrot and Strubinger at the tackles; Signalet and Cuthbertson at the guards; Keadis at center, Bonacci at quarterback, and Baker, Moriarity and Higgins in the backfield. That team is heavier than any eleven which has faced it this year. The team is heavy and yet there is not a man who could be called beefy. They are all tall, rangy, husky men, powerful in appearance.

Whatever be the result of the season's play, it is certain that the Billiken squad has good material. Besides regulars, the team has a number of substitute material. Outside of that lineup there are Weiss, Kennedy, Finnegan, Meinhardt, Leffler, Murphy, Manning, Moran and Boggs, who are capable second string men. This Grand avenue bunch is a dangerous lot. It looks bad on the early season record, but has the latent power. It may come around tomorrow, next week or never; but it is a bad idea to look upon it as an inferior eleven. It has the stuff to be brought out.

Rutherford Switches Lineup.

Coach Rutherford used quite a changed lineup on Francis Field yesterday afternoon. Ends Berger and Eiling were shifted to the backfield, while Harvey, a halfback, and Center took the wing portfolios.

Al Marquardt, guard, moved over to center, and was replaced by Newport who recently recovered from an injury. This looks like quite a shift only four days before the Drake game, and because of its coming so near to the Conference contest probably signifies that it will never be carried through. Rutherford has a squad of only 15 men and he is simply changing the positions for a day to accommodate a guard to center, a half to end and so on. Should Kremer be injured he could not call a substitute player man from the sidelines, but would have to use one of his regulars. Consequently these shifts are simply temporary to accustom the fighting Maroons to other positions.

Nelson did not appear for practice yesterday, but will probably be around today. He is certainly needed as it is hazardous to make the trip to Des Moines with a scarce dozen and a half players.

MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION WILL GIVE ITS ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT

The second annual entertainment and dance of the Municipal Athletic Association will be given tonight at Sacred Heart Hall, Twenty-fifth and St. Louis avenue. The Bob White Minstrels will put on a sketch entitled "Somewhere in America."

Zim. THE greatest guy in many ways. That ever wore a glove! A man whom there were none to praise. And very few to love.

One day he pulled a fatal bone With Collins on the base; He tried to run him down alone. But Eddie won the race.

The pellet Zim refused to throw And took out after him; But Collins beat him out and, oh, The difference to Zim!

Indian Summer.

WE'RE having Indian summer and the weather's mild and fair; We open up the window and inhale the balmy air. But soon there'll come a blizzard and we'll get a sudden shock. When the frost is on the pumpkin and our overcoat's in lock.

When first we heard the warble of the harbingers of spring We left it with our uncle for what ever it would bring; Where it will lie in snow till the wild geese southward flock. When the frost is on the pumpkin and our overcoat's in lock.

Nix on the Nicks.

Branch Rickey says the next manager of the Cards will be a man with a college degree. While that eliminates Nick Altrock, the finger of suspicion points more strongly than ever to our other entry, Nick Romanoff.

George Stallings was fined $5 for "sassing" a cop in Mason, Mo. George is alleged to have told the minion that he was "crooked as a ram's horn." The "Miracle Man" must have forgot himself and thought he was talking to an umpire.

All men look alike to George when they are wearing a blue uniform.

It takes something more than a "Miracle Man" to cast asparagus at a cop and get away with it.

Foley May Switch Heads of Billiken Innisfail Lineup for Game Sunday

Manager of Irishmen Peevish at Showing Made by His Eleven Against Millers.

Manager Willie Foley of the Innisfail of the St. Louis Soccer League, who has been trying out numerous youngsters since the opening of the present campaign, threatens to shake up his lineup, following the sorrowful showing made last Sunday in the battle with the leading Ben Millers.

Foley does not mince his words, stating that the exhibition was the worst he has seen in the days that he has handled the eleven. And Foley has been at the helm a long time. Being one of the leaders when the eleven were still battling at Athletic Park.

Against the league leaders last week, Foley had a forward line with only one real veteran, Danny Byrne or it. He also had several other former Municipal League players in the lineup Sunday.

Frank Lyster, formerly of the Municipal League, and Connie Reed are scheduled to handle next Sunday's battles.

CENTRAL AND CENTURY BIKE CLUBS WILL HOLD MONTHLY RUN ON SUNDAY

The Central Cycling Club's journey to Bonne Terre last Sunday, amply demonstrated to the members participating that it was tough going for bike riders. On leaving the LeMay Ferry road the path became a succession of hills almost too steep to climb and likewise too steep to descend, except at the risk of the rider's neck.

The Centrals and Century Cycling Club have decided to hold their joint monthly run next Sunday. The journey will be to Alton via Granite City, Mitchell and Woodriver, returning via Edwardsville, where dinner will be had, thence south through Maryville, Collinsville and East St. Louis.

Tony Sieghold acting road captain of the Centrals' promises ample representation from that club. Unattached riders are especially urged to make this trip as it is over an interesting route, without hitch, permitting the start will be made at 7 a. m. from the west approach of the McKinnon bridge.

POLO LEAGUE ORGANIZED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 7.—Representatives of Providence, Worcester, Brockton, Taunton, Lawrence and Lowell, at a meeting here last night, perfected the reorganization of the American Roller Polo League. Fred M. Moore of Lowell, was elected president. The playing rules of the National League were adopted.

Conductor Muck of the Boston Symphony ran amuck when he refused to "stand" for the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Tough Luck. A certain conductor named Muck. A discord in harmony struck. Not a hand did he care. For the National Anthem. So a can on his coat tail was stuck.

Some Flyer.

It is thought that the war will be decided in the air. Boy, page the Dove of Peace.

Anomalous. The winner of the scribe's billiard tournament will get a traveling bag. The losers will hold the bag.

Some Tip.

We are not at liberty to tell our readers who the next manager of the Cards will be but we'll give you a hint. His name begins with one of the first 25 letters of the alphabet. He weighs between 120 and 200 pounds, and is between 5 feet and 6 feet 5 inches high. That ought to give you a pretty good line on who the next pilot of the kithole gang will be.

The Future City Athletic Club was pulled by the police last night for selling a ticket to a non-member by the name of Stanislaus Stuckowsky. There may be nothing in a name, but you'll never make Tommy Sullivan believe it.

In the light of what came off we take it that the Future City has rather a gummy future.

Neither Reagan nor Anderson received a black eye, but the fight club was on the receiving end of a beautiful pair of shiners.

Looks like we'll have to go to the ball game when we want to see a fight.

Celebrating.

At an early hour this morning, Murphy, the Tammany chief was reported to be doing the Hyman thing.

The Tammy tiger, we take it, will start to eating meat again. He's been on a protracted stretch of meatless days.

TWO LOCAL BOYS ENLIST IN NET AMBULANCE CORPS

Horace W. Beck and Edward C. Daly have been accepted as members of the Tennis Ambulance Corps and are now at Jefferson Barracks, preparatory to being sent to camp at Allentown, Pa., according to an announcement from Davidson O'Brien, secretary of the St. Louis Tennis Association.

Beck and Daly will be assigned to ambulance duties in the units being formed by the U. S. National Tennis Association, funds for which were raised by a tour of the net stars, who played at Trips A a few weeks ago. O'Brien says he has been ordered to stop enlistments temporarily, but believes the call for the second section will be issued about December 1.

JUNIOR SOCCER LEAGUE TEAMS MEET TOMORROW

A meeting of the Junior Municipal Soccer League is scheduled to be held at room 320 Municipal Courts Building, when final plans for the opening of the season will be completed. At present one team is needed to fill out both the Fairground and Carondelet divisions.

It was suggested that with only six teams, a circuit with this number of eleven is not feasible. However, Jack the Carondelet Park managers refused to do. Abeken says that both of them must have a team by Thursday or the league will be disbanded.

TWO BASKET BALL LEAGUES WILL BE FORMED SHORTLY

Municipal Association and A. A. U. Announce That They Will Be in the Field Again.

COURTS BADLY NEEDED

Abeken Says Those At Mullanyphy and C. B. C. May Not Be Ready for Use This Year.

The chances at present are that there will again be two basket ball leagues in this city this winter, the Municipal and the Amateur Athletic Union. Rodowe Abeken, Director of Municipal Athletics, announced today that a circuit would be organized while some time ago Fred Wagoner, president of the Western A. A. U., said this organization would again be in the field.

However, there is a chance that before the circuits are finally completed the two will get together and form one league, with the strongest possible talent in the lineup. Last year there was a working agreement between the two and the pennant winners of the pair met in a three game series for the local champion ship. This was won by the Missouri A. A. five, title winners of the A. A. U. League.

Interest in Game Here.

In announcing that the Municipal Association would again have basketball, Abeken said that from past indications there is a lot of interest in the game at present. As he had many inquiries as to what plans would be made for the formation of a circuit.

Last season the Municipal had two fairly strong leagues, one playing at the Central Y. M. C. A. and the other at the Columbian A. C. The Bragg-Kings, with former high school stars in the lineup, won the "Y" while the C. A. C. five landed the pennant in the other group. The Brownings defeated the Tangled C in the title struggle. These two quintets, however, represented the pick of the organization.

According to Abeken, the hardest matter to settle will be finding floors on which to play the contests, as has been the case in former years. All which again brings to mind that the Municipal Association needs a gymnasium in which to decide these battles.

Courts Will Cause Trouble.

Courts are being built at the 24 Lapham Pool and in the old Christy Brothers' College gymnasium. As Abeken stated that the work was progressing very slowly and that there was a chance that neither would be available for use the coming season.

If the Columbian A. C. again enter the circuit, they will assure on court. Tangled C officials, however, have not yet made known their intentions on this subject.

How the A. A. U. also will have trouble along this line, with the Missouri Athletic Association having no competitive athletes, and the A. A. U. no chance to use the Cherry Diamond court.
